To Be Specific, B.C. Owns Pacific

Phil Boils Over Oil

VANCOUVER (CP)—Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi said Wednesday British Columbia owns "everything off the B.C. coast, and I don't care how far out you go."

In a fast-falling speech to the Asphalt Institute, he said the federal government adds "salt to injury" by trying "to steal our resources as well."

He told the meeting—which included representatives from major oil companies—"Shell Oil Company went to Ottawa as well as to us to get offshore rights to drill for oil."

"I say shame on you, and I say you're going to pay those oil royalties to us."

Mr. Gagliardi said the question of offshore mineral rights ownership goes to the Supreme Court of Canada soon, and "we don't care about precedents. We'll set the precedents."

Mr. Gagliardi, who said he keeps the asphalt industry in business, told delegates to the meeting they should get busy with more research.

He said the province has already poured so much asphalt that "you people will never go out of business," because of the maintenance needed.

But "the concrete people are beating a path to my door, and coming up with some competitive prices."

Cost of building concrete highways is 25 per cent higher than asphalt, he said, but asphalt costs $1,000 per year per mile to maintain.

Kremlin Offers Bridge to Hanoi

QUIET HELP BEHIND 'NYET'

By E. C. THALER

LONDON (UPI)—Informed British sources say the Kremlin has offered to urge the North Vietnamese regime to receive the Commonwealth peace mission in Hanoi, if China bars it from Peking.

The disclosure came after Moscow announced it would not receive the four-man mission because it felt the Vietnamese must settle the problem themselves.

NO MENTION

The Soviet refusal was reported by the official news agency Tass. Tass made no mention of the reported Soviet offer to intercede with Hanoi which has been receiving military and other aid from the Russians.

But the sources said a lengthy and "conditional" note received from the Soviet government Wednesday made three points:

● Desire of the Soviet government to discontinue itself from the Vietnamese conflict.

● The disassociation of the Russians from the Chinese in the conflict.

● That if Peking refused to receive the mission, such refusal would put the Soviet government in a position to influence Hanoi to receive the four peace-seekers.

STILL AJAB

In view of the third point, the sources said the Soviet note was not regarded as "completely closing the door."

Commonwealth sources said that for this reason it was felt the mission's task was still "by no means over."

Rusk

Red Goal:

'Victory,
Not Peace'

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary Dean Rusk warned Wednesday casualties will mount in the "brutal war" in Viet Nam. He said the Communists are pushing for "a military victory," not peace.

"The other side is obviously not ready for peace," Rusk said in recounting unsuccessful peace talk attempts.

Rusk reported that in "a brutal war—marked by terror and such attacks, and by the killing of women and children in the night"—the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas have killed some 2,500 South Vietnamese civilians.

Since the onset of the Viet Cong monsoon season offensive he said, "setbacks have occurred and serious defeats have been avoided only by the combination of continuing South Vietnamese bravery and effective air and other support."

'Offshore' Provinces

Eight Fight Against Case

QUEBEC (CP)—Eight provinces have agreed to insist at the July 19 federal-provincial conference that Ottawa withdraw a Supreme Court of Canada case dealing with offshore underwater exploration rights off the British Columbia coast. Premier Jean Lesage told the Quebec legislature Wednesday.

Prince George

No Relief In Fire Situation

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—Clouds brought gusting winds, small lightning storms, scattered showers and little relief for more than 150 men fighting two major week-old forest fires Wednesday in the large Prince George fire district.

A Forest Service spokesman said most Pacific air forecast Tuesday to blanket the province pushed only as far as the Kamloops fire district, 200 miles south of here.

Two Canso water bombers flew missions Wednesday morning to drench outbreaks beyond the perimeter of a 1,500-acre fire burning 30 miles southeast of here.

The spokesman said the 80 men and six bulldozers there have regained firm control of the blaze after 48 m.p.h. winds threatened to spread it beyond the fireguards.

He was replying to questions asking what means the Quebec government intends to follow to obtain underwater exploration rights in the St. Lawrence River and Gulf of St. Lawrence.

STRONG OPPOSITION

Premier Lesage expressed strong opposition in the legislature Tuesday to the granting of a federal underwater gas and petroleum exploration permit covering 1,500,000 acres of the Gulf of St. Lawrence to Pan American Petroleum Corp. of Calgary.

"It is remarkable," Mr. Lesage told the legislature Wednesday, "that the federal permit was accorded in the absence of Prime Minister Pearson, who is attending the Commonwealth conference in London."

SAME INTERESTS

"You can imagine what words I will use at the federal-provincial conference when I am surrounded by premiers who have the same interests in the subject as I have and whose provinces have the same interests as Quebec," he gave no details of the Supreme Court case.

Offshore underwater exploration rights is a political question and not a legal question, he said.

"Natural resources, be they under the ground or under the water, should be considered as provincial property," he said.

Winnifred Fitton

Ticket draws buzz for Winnifred Fitton from husband John

Luck o' the Irish?

"I'm from Ireland," Winnifred Fitton said Wednesday night, "so maybe..."

Mrs. Fitton, 1258 Yates, was breathless from the news that she had drawn an Irish Sweepstakes ticket on the Saturday running of the Irish sweeps derby in Dublin.

She was one of nine on Vancouver Island, and one of 196 in Canada, with a chance at the big prizes of about $150,000, $60,000 and $30,000.

MOST IN CITY

All but two of the nine are Greater Victoria residents and all but one of the seven lucky ticket-holders in this area have city addresses.

Mrs. Fitton was the only one identified. The others, with ticket number, non de plume and horse in that order: Victoria—ABT 22196, Cookie on Ballistic; AMN 70856, Hopalong on Bee Strong; BSP 72614, Silver Standard on Reliance II; ACB 14294, Yeah on Dux Bonus; RFR 70071, Rajan on Nearside.

Saanichton—AEB 12804, Tyne on Western Wind; Nanaimo—EPA 12148, LTS on Wedding Present; Ladysmith—AKR 59782, Knobby on Wedding Present.

Mrs. Fitton's ticket, EZN 71884, was drawn on His Brother and bore her name.

"I've bought tickets all my life," she said, "and you know how it is, you always say, 'One of these days...' May be this is it."

FROM FRIEND

Mrs. Fitton, who said she got her ticket "from a friend," works as a practical nurse in the emergency department at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Her husband works in the drug and cosmetics department at the Woolco department store.

All ticket-holders will receive at least $1,100 each if their horses run out of the money. No Islanders drew the favored Meadow Court, owned by Calgary publisher Max Bell.

The draw is usually held over two days but this time was completed in one.

Parliamentary Blessing Assured

Swastikas Blooming For Royal Nuptials

THE HAGUE (UPI)—Vandals painted orange swastikas on walls in The Hague Wednesday and smeared slogans in Amsterdam and Rotterdam saying "Out with Claus" in reference to Claus von Amsberg, the former Nazi officer who plans to marry Crown Princess Beatrix.

But Dutch Premier Joseph M. L. T. Cals said the expected marriage of the princess, 27, and the German commoner, 38, now a West German diplomat, would get the blessing of Parliament.

One high official said the cabinet also has agreed to back Beatrix' choice "because no other way is open to us except public rejection of von Amsberg."

Informed sources said the engagement is expected to be announced by Queen Juliana, Beatrix' mother, on June 28 and the wedding is planned for late in the fall.

They said the queen intends to elevate von Amsberg, to "Prince of the Netherlands" after the marriage. He would be the first commoner in Dutch history to get this title. Dr. Cals predicted parliamentary consent after two days of consultation with party leaders in both houses. The consultations were held to determine if a bill of approval for the marriage could receive the necessary unanimous or near-unanimous support needed to guarantee the princess retention of her rights to the throne.

It was indicated that few members of parliament, with the exception of some from the Socialist and Communist parties, would oppose the bill.

Some public opposition to the marriage has been reflected in the press and also in the distribution of pamphlets with anti-German slogans. Many Dutch are still bitter over memories of the German occupation.

A number of newspapers have questioned whether it would be proper for a former Wehrmacht soldier and member of the Nazi youth movement to marry the princess.

We 'Recognize' China—Pearson

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson says the fact Canada sells wheat to China is "a form of recognition" of that country.

Pearson made that point Wednesday when asked whether a country that does not recognize China should ever become a member of the Commonwealth peace mission seeking to consult with China and other countries to end the war in South Viet Nam.

"IN A SENSE"

If China takes that position, Pearson said, then it will become an important consideration that will have to be taken into account.

While he, as prime minister, does not expect to be asked to become a member of the mission, he maintained "in a sense" Canada does recognize China, even though it has not granted China diplomatic recognition.

"We sell them a great deal of wheat," he said at a Commonwealth correspondents luncheon. "That is a form of recognition. I'm not always sure they recognize us."

Pearson found himself besieged by questions whether he would be willing to replace Prime Minister Wilson as head of the four-power mission.

"That is a very hypothetical question," he replied. "I think it is a great mistake to talk about a change in the membership of the mission at this stage... I don't think it is very helpful to talk about changes of the mission membership."

He had not been asked and did not expect to be asked to join the mission. All questions on whether he had been asked to lead the mission were "hypothetical."

LOTS TO DO

"I've got lots to do in Canada these days."

As for Communist objections that Wilson is too much a supporter of the U.S. in Viet Nam to be mission chairman, Pearson said he doesn't think this is a valid objection.

The mission had to have representations of all shades of opinion. As long as there was a balance he could see no reason for argument.

CHANGED MINDS

And as for the doors the Communists have slammed against the mission, well, they had done so in the past—at the time of the Korean War—only to change their minds.

The Chinese at that time had proved very difficult. They would not talk of a ceasefire. But two or three months later they had changed their minds.

'Reds Would Balk At Vote Today'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator J. W. Fulbright said Wednesday he believes the Communists would balk at any new proposal to unite North and South Viet Nam through a supervised election.

Critics have said the United States encouraged the regime of the late Ngo Dinh Diem to ignore this provision for fear that the Communists would win in such a test.

Fulbright said he thinks the United States should disregard such fears if negotiations over Viet Nam ever materialize.

"The Communists always shy away from elections and avoid them if they can."

Fortune from Faulty Phone

Firm Ordered to Pay $1,500,000 to Its Critic

LOS ANGELES (AP)—An attorney who complained about phone service has won a whopping $1,500,000 damage judgment.

All Arthur Garrett wanted back in 1957 was to move his phone from his old office to his new office, six stories higher in the same building.

"From then on," he says, "it was interruptions and more interruptions."

A jury Tuesday awarded him $1 in actual damages and

$1,500,000 in punitive damages from Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co.

The firm says it is studying the case to decide whether to appeal.

Garrett, 63, who served as his own attorney, quipped after the verdict: "Well, you win some, you lose some."

Highlights of his testimony: Disputes over what he considered overcharges and service interruptions caused him to run, unsuccessfully, for city attorney in 1961.

Service, after he announced plans to campaign on improve-faulty-phone-service platform, got worse.

At one point, he said, he was told by a woman who identified herself as a company supervisor: "Your telephone is out of order and its going to stay that way. We have our instructions concerning you."

Company witnesses conceded service interruptions, but said financial adjustments were made.

A jury of six men and six women voted 10-3 for the award after seven hours of deliberation.

What are his plans for the award?

"I haven't had time to give it a thought," Garrett said. "Since the news got out the phone's been ringing off the hook."

U.S. Bombers Attack Again

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Air Force planes staged their third raid Wednesday on the Son La military base 119 miles west-northwest of North Vietnam's capital of Hanoi. Fifty buildings were destroyed, 43 damaged, a spokesman said.

Three barracks and a bridge were reported destroyed in a strike Friday at Son La, 80 miles from China's frontier with North Vietnam. Corroborating reports were told nine buildings were destroyed and 20 damaged in the second raid Tuesday.

While a 37-plane fleet staged the third strike, North Vietnamese gunners hit and set afire one of a four-plane team of U.S. Air Force Thunderbolts on a road reconnaissance mission.

In South Viet Nam, bomb and napalm strikes at the Viet Cong guerrillas were made by U.S. marine jet squadrons at two points south of Da Nang, which is near the North Vietnamese border and 230 miles northeast of Saigon.

Marine flyers loosed 20 tons of explosives in support of a South Vietnamese government unit in the Quang Ngai area.

Jets dumped high explosives and napalm bombs on a Viet Cong stronghold near Qui Nhon. The spokesman said they knocked out five gun emplacements and killed five guerrillas.

In Washington, U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk warned continuing heavy casualties on both sides must be expected. He said U.S. losses may increase.

No More Shotguns Up the Chimneys

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—Four state legislators have introduced a bill to repeal a 1951 law banning the firing of a gun in Pennsylvania without a special license from the governor.

Historians said the old law was passed to give the state tighter control over gunners who fired shotguns up chimneys to clean them out.

Rebels Accept Pact

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) — The rebels accepted with some changes Wednesday an Organization of American States peace proposal to settle the Dominican crisis. They agreed to a provisional government, with elections in six to nine months—the main points in the OAS plan.

The rival civilian - military junta has promised to hand its reply to the OAS proposal shortly.

The rebels suggested that the bill of rights in the 1963 constitution be incorporated in the provisional government will rule until elections.

A key point in the rebel government's statement suggested that weapons in the hands of civilians be turned over to the provisional government.

A Lack of Men

PRAISE is no stranger to the Saanich police force, but the unequivocal commendation given to it by retired RCMP superintendent J. A. Henry after a seven-week study, coming from an expert with a searching eye, will be an exceptionally gratifying tribute to the chief and his men. It warrants the effusive applause of the community.

But though Supt. Henry gives full credit to the force as it exists for its alertness, industry, conscientiousness, appearance and deportment, his report leaves little room for doubt about its inadequacy in size, as to both manpower and equipment.

When five other places of equivalent population are cited as examples, each smaller in territory and with less road mileage but with more policemen and police vehicles, it would scarcely appear that Saanich is up to a desirable standard in this respect.

This is not the only criterion, of course, nor necessarily always a good one. For purposes of comparison much depends on such things as whether a policing area is central or suburban in nature: Saanich for instance has nearly as many people now as Victoria city but the latter has more than twice as many policemen and could well use an ever bigger force.

But due weight assuredly has been given to this factor in the study, and besides the report indicates quite definitely a deficiency in traffic patrol activity for want of men and vehicles, a matter of growing importance as the Saanich Peninsula continues its rapid development.

Reeve Curtis as chairman of the police commission says that "we would have to have very good reason for not adopting the (manpower) recommendation." The temptation will be to see the reason in the tax rate. But adequate police protection is a service that Saanich or any other municipality can ill afford to lack.

Outspoken Critic

MR. Roderick Haig-Brown of Campbell River, as well known as a conservationist as he is an author, and a magistrate to boot, has kicked over a wasp's nest of criticism by his remarks at a Canadian Authors' Association convention dinner in Victoria.

He was a guest speaker there, and the recipient of the Vicky Metcalf award for writing of outstanding inspiration to Canadian youth.

He startled his audience when he asserted . . . "I hate practically everything British Columbia stands for today . . ."

It was, in truth, a pretty sweeping condemnation. Out of full context it sounds almost treasonable. Undoubtedly he meant what he said, but perhaps not as it sounded.

Mr. Haig-Brown spoke of those "who belittle and misinterpret the country's meanings," and if from the published accounts of his address it is inferred that he was attacking provincialism where it conflicts with national interests that, too, may be a misinterpretation.

One might argue that a good citizen of British Columbia is a good citizen of Canada, that provincial loyalties have some place in the country, just as a citizen may think first of the welfare of his own small community or, initially, of the well-being of his family. Or one could invert the argument.

When Mr. Haig-Brown spoke of the responsibilities of a writer he was on unchallengeable ground. "He is a critic of his country and the people who live in it. He is an unpleasant, inconvenient sort of person."

In this latter attitude, one feels, at least some of his author-audience will agree with him wholeheartedly.

Measles Danger

ALTHOUGH it is not widely known outside the medical profession, there is a new one-shot anti-measles vaccine available to parents of young families in Canada today.

It is estimated that at least 500,000 cases of measles occur in Canada each year, and the prevailing opinion of the uninformed is that this is a not-very-serious disease every child will inevitably contract suffering no more than ten days' discomfort and without ill effects.

In the period 1953-63 however 1,200 deaths in Canada were attributed to measles.

A recent epidemic in Great Britain brought a medical report indicating one in 15 children suffered a potentially serious complication in measles.

As a result of these complications a more significant death rate is now associated with the disease that for so long has been considered of no more than nuisance consequence.

The vaccine is obtainable through private practitioners in B.C. and is recommended by the provincial authorities. Its value recognized. But the cost is relatively high. Until the price is more reasonable it is unlikely that purchase of the vaccine in quantity sufficient for universal inoculation will be considered. Yet it is quantity production that will bring down the price.

This is so frequently the pattern.

Surely, where a drug or antibiotic or vaccine, whatever the specific use of the products, is of proven value it is good business to order in bulk so that the cost will be within reach of everyone. We have surely passed that period in our progress when only the well-to-do are the fruits of medical science fully available.

Founding Father

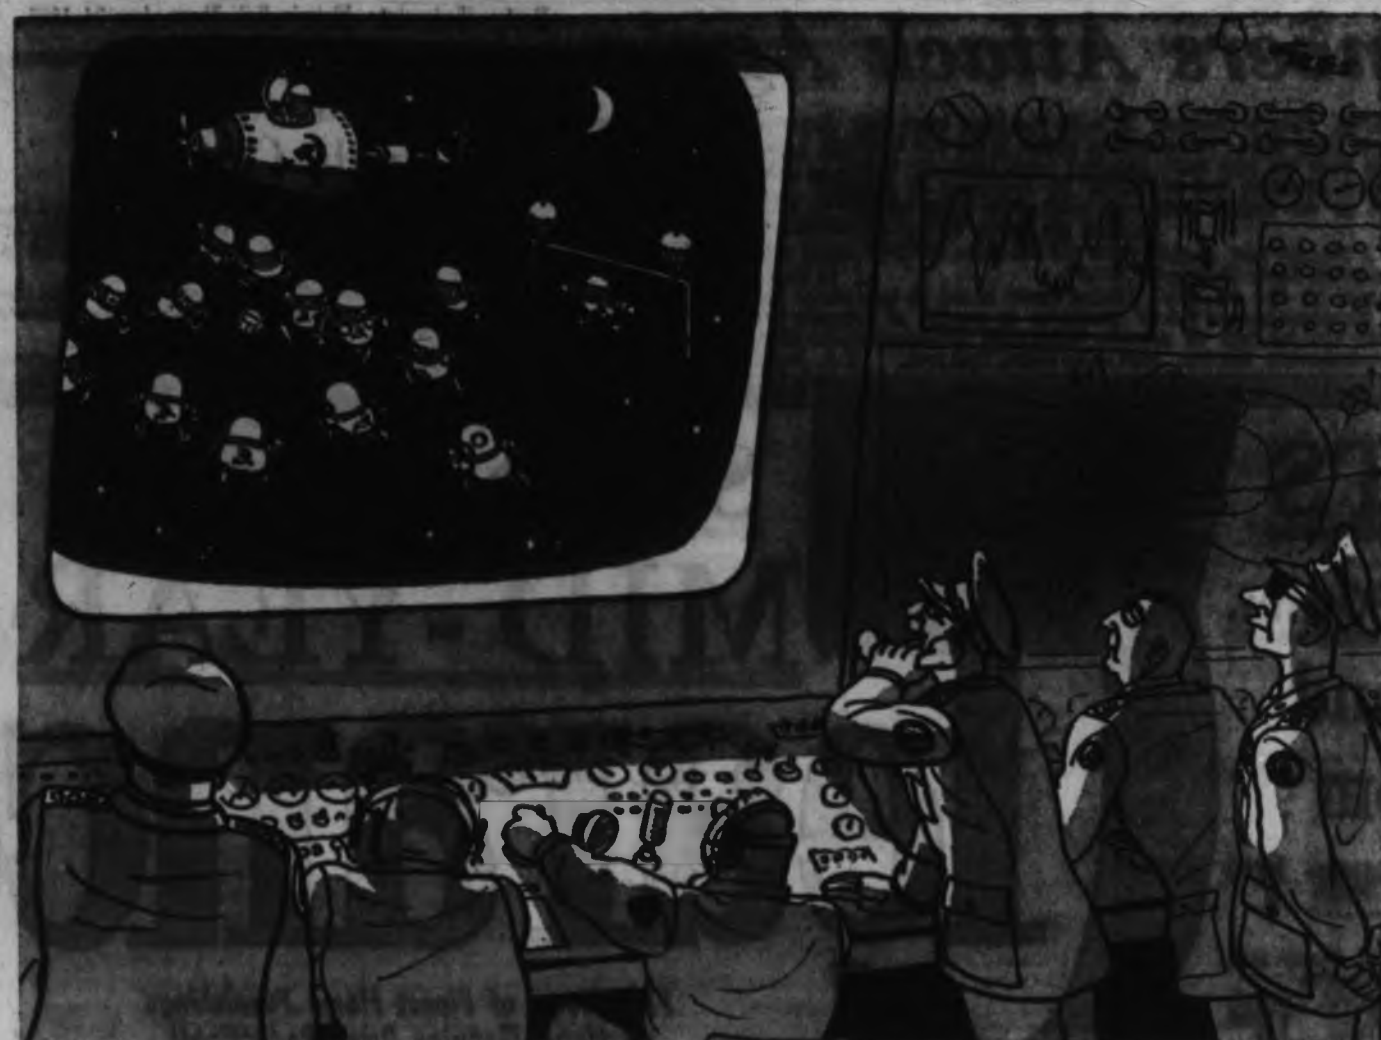

WITH full military honors, Rear-Admiral Walter Hose, CBE, will be buried in Windsor, Ont., Friday. He was 89.

He will be remembered as one of the "fathers" of the Royal Canadian Navy. It was he who brought the Royal Navy cruiser Rainbow to Esquimalt in 1910, under Canadian command, but with a British crew, flying the White Ensign which had been adopted as the flag of Canada's infant service. It was he who laid on this coast the first tentative foundations of a Canadian naval establishment.

He was Commander Hose then, a tall, quiet man, a little austere, but known for his quick wit and his professional qualities. He was a man of vision, moreover, and it is safe to assume that careful thinking went into his selection as one of the Royal Navy officers to help establish the new navy.

He accepted a commission in the RCN in February, 1912, was Director of Naval Service in 1921, and the first Chief of Naval Staff at Ottawa in 1928, with the rank of commodore.

He was retired in 1934 as rear-admiral, the first in Canada's history.

"Mr. President? They've sure set the pace this time."

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoot, and ship, and sailing war..."

By TOM TAYLOR

THERE was a flutter a while ago in Athens, if I remember aright, when Prince Philip seemed to disown his Greek heritage, and now the shades of Sir Winston Churchill have arisen to disturb the parliamentary scene in that ancient city. The American state department has released some war-time documents and one of them quotes Churchill as saying in 1944 of the then Greek prime minister, Mr. Papandreu, that "he appears to change his mind about three times a day."

Now you wouldn't think, since this remark should be old hat now, that such a verdict mattered a jot, except that Mr. Papandreu is currently once more the Greek prime minister and the opposition has fastened on the disclosure to embarrass him.

You can trust a political opposition to summon the past, or a government party in vice versa, naturally when the needle is handy. What a politician says anytime in his life, or someone else says of him, is always grist to the mill.

Theoretically a man is never supposed to change his mind, you see, even if actually this is quite a common occurrence. But still three times a day is a lot, presumably since the Churchillian statement had to do with a triple approach to the same subject.

The ladies, bless their topsy-turvy ways, are exempt from any such charge; it is deemed to be their special privilege to change their minds—as often as needs be. But then in the Western world at least no woman has ever been a prime minister. The masculine cards are stacked against them in this climate, one must conclude.

The point of the teacup storm in Athens is that this uncomplicated opinion comes from outside, and from so famous a statesman. Were it otherwise doubtless Mr. Papandreu would merely smile and shrug his shoulders. After all the man who never changed his mind never changed anything. But the opposition thesis, even after 20 years, is that this indicates the Greek prime minister to be an irresolute leader.

I feel sure without doing any research that John D. and Lester B., in and out of office in each case, have accused one another of similar contradictions—and a lot worse besides—but this is all in the national family and a matter of names that break no bones. It's when a foreign viewpoint is injected into the argument that the fat is in the fire. Just think what happens when a U.S. politician seems to cast aspersions on a Canadian government or its policies.

Mr. Papandreu's opponents hew to the typical style still further.

They conveniently ignore two other Churchillian comments on their prime minister, one before and one after the mind-changing incident, in each of which Sir Winston praised the quality of Mr. Papandreu.

Sir Winston could change his mind also, you see. I think if I were the Greek prime minister I'd simply stand up and say to my opponents: "So what? These were changing days."

But then so few prime ministers, Mr. Bennett excepted perhaps, have the nerve—or the gall—simply to assume the bland countenance that reduces political pinpricks to nothing. They try too much to wriggle out of such things by making excuses.

Jamaica Being Pushed to Left

By JOHN CROCKER from Kingston, Jamaica

THE capitalistic thud and clip of tennis balls, the golfers' cries of "fore," the swish of the cocktail shakers and the shouts of command at the Queen's Birthday parade, could almost, one feels, be heard across the water in nearby Communist Cuba.

This prosperous island nation of Jamaica, of some 1,705,000 inhabitants, predominantly Negro, will have been a fully independent member of the British Commonwealth for three years next August. It is a remarkable example of a successful democracy, firmly based on the Westminster tradition in a part of the world that has been singled out by international Communism as one of the most promising for subversion.

Jamaica was a British possession for roughly 300 years, and the leaders of the two dominant political parties, the ruling Jamaica Labour Party and the opposition People's National Party, have no desire to lessen the ties which still connect the former colony, politically, economically and in general outlook, to Britain. There, as never, less, signs that this oasis of democratic stability lying between Castro's Cuba and the tormented island of Hispaniola (shared by Duvalier's Haitian police state and the strife-torn Dominican Republic) could be entering a crucial period.

Jamaica's "Grand Old Man" and Labor Party leader, Sir Alexander Bustamante, aged 81, has been seriously ill since the beginning of this year. The acting prime minister, Mr. Donald Sangster, though he is regarded here as having shown wisdom and ability during his brief period at the helm, is not considered to be a man of the same calibre. And the days are clearly numbered also for the PNP opposition leader, Mr. Norman Manley, who is only slightly

General elections are due to be held here at the latest in 1967, and it is believed that these will be the last to be contested by the two parties in their present forms. Rumors that Sir Alexander may regain his health and stage a political comeback are completely discounted in informed circles here.

Without "Busta" at the JLP helm, it is expected that the PNP will win the elections, but the feeling is that Mr. Manley, a London-trained barrister, will be not much more than titular leader. Real power—at any rate by the year 1968—will be in the hands of younger PNP men, among whom is Mr. Manley's son, Michael. Some of these younger men are known to have leftist views, and there is a strong vein of leftist thought in university circles and among the younger Jamaican intellectuals.

It is against this background that thinking people here are viewing Jamaica's future. Meanwhile, to sustain the present atmosphere of "Britishness," the tennis and the cocktails, there is a rosy economic picture. The country's national income of $242 million in 1964 was almost 8 per cent higher than it was in 1963, and per capita income last year, at $139, showed an increase of slightly more than 5 per cent over the 1963 figure.

On almost all sides, with agriculture being the laggard, production figures showed a healthy increase last year over 1963. For example, exports from the country's largest money-producing industry, bauxite, were valued at $33.8 million in 1964, which is 64.3 million more than in 1963. Other established industries showed increased output and the rate of new industrial growth and construction activity in general is shown by the increase last year of 40 per cent in local sales from the cement factory just outside Kingston.

Last year Jamaica's tourist trade (86 per cent from the United States) had a record total of 97,000 long-staying visitors. This was 20 per cent above the 1963 figure and brought into the country an estimated $15.6 million compared with $13.5 million in 1963.

On the other hand United States trade with the United States more than doubled between 1959 and 1964, trade with Britain declined relatively. This is one indication that a new orientation of Jamaica's way of life could occur within the next decade.

Another indication of possible change is the continued dominance economically, and to some extent politically, of a handful of big families who still largely control agriculture (rum, sugar, bananas, etc.), a great part of the island's business (shipping, insurance, etc.), press, and the law. These families have not moved with the times and still lead almost segregated lives of the sort which went on in the "great houses" of the colonial days.

This dominance, which amounts, one is told, to a control of something like 60 per cent of the country's wealth and resources, and is only slightly affected by new investment money coming in from the U.S.A., Canada and Britain, is deeply resented by the younger generation. They feel that although British rule has now gone, they are still hobbled from running the affairs of their own country. There is resentment also that, though Jamaica now buys more from the U.S.A. than she sells there, Washington seems to be adopting a policy which, as one businessman put it, "could cripple this little island." A total embargo has been placed on agricultural laborers going to work seasonally in the U.S.A., and there are reports of a possible ban being placed on sugar imports from Jamaica. Business circles here talk ominously about the possibility of U.S. interests crippling Jamaica's bauxite industry by "dumping" in the world market, and indignation is expressed about Washington moves to reduce drastically the amount of goods which U.S. tourists are allowed to bring back with them without paying duty.

"If America wants to have another Dominican Republic on her doorstep, she only has to do these four things," I was told by a senior civil servant. So the position here is that, while the casual visitor must be struck by the apparent stability of this overwhelmingly British-orientated island, which still uses pounds, shillings and pence, a number of factors are at work which could alter the situation in a few years.

Cuba is 90 miles from the plush Montego Bay tourist resort and it was hinted to me that the reactions of the inhabitants of the city (the second largest in Jamaica) to the tourists is something like those of the Cubans when Batista's Havana was in its heyday—they need the money but they do not have much respect for the people who bring it.

Meanwhile, Jamaica has to reckon with a population increase of something over 40,000 each year while only about 11,000 new jobs are being created annually. Last year controlled immigration to the United Kingdom was 9,380 compared with the pre-control 1961 total of 39,203. "Our most important safety-valve is almost, but not quite, closed," a Montego Bay landowner told me. (CPL—Copyright.)

Sectional Differences a Problem

Afro-Asian Parley a Test

By JAMES DOUGLAS

ALL Western countries which are contributing heavily in economic assistance to developing countries must have a lively interest in the Afro-Asian Conference originally due to open in Algiers on June 25.

It is 10 years since this grouping of mainly non-aligned countries met at Bandung in Indonesia to discuss their common problems. The ranks of the grouping have now increased to a point where more than 50 nations are expected to be represented in Algiers.

The problems may not have increased but they have certainly not diminished.

It is still not clear which countries will be invited to attend. Eleven French-speaking African countries have indicated that they do not intend to be present. They appear to be satisfied in their own minds that the Algiers meeting may well contribute nothing to ease their difficulties and that it is unlikely to be sufficiently genuinely unaligned to accord with their policies.

It may well be that the French-speaking countries have been over-hasty and that in the event a workable agenda, dealing with real issues and not with propaganda exercises about nationalism and other forms of diplomatic "shadow boxing," may emerge from the foreign ministers' preliminary meeting to discuss rules of procedure. The main interest for the world outside the Afro-Asian grouping must be in the extent to which the gathering in Algiers will be able to make a contribution to the many and pressing problems of the countries represented there.

Much depends on the outcome of the foreign ministers' preliminary talks, for enough has been said by the Chinese and Indonesians to indicate that they are out to use the conference to advance their own interests. If the foreign ministers can agree then as in the United Nations General Assembly and other democratic international bodies, decisions are to be based on the principle of "Musjawarah" to be applied at the conference. This is, in effect, that all decisions must be arrived at by consensus and not by voting.

Their primary object is, of course, to keep the Malaysians out. The idea of "Musjawarah" has considerable emotional appeal because it enables the gathering to present an appearance of unanimity and solidarity.

But it has the grave disadvantage that it virtually allows a single delegation or a small group of delegations both to impose a veto on any decisions or resolutions they may dislike and to force through opinions for which a majority would not be prepared to vote, but which they do not wish to oppose publicly.

The Chinese, for their part, will argue that the developing countries should wage a relentless struggle against the so-called imperialist west; and they will do everything possible to portray the Russians as sham Communists and false friends of the Afro-Asian cause.

They have already scored one success in that South Korea and South Viet Nam have not yet been invited to the conference.

In these circumstances the outcome of the Algiers Conference may demonstrate whether the Afro-Asian world can live up to its ideals or whether it will succumb to sectional interests which seek to use it for their own ends.

The French population was already replete under occupation, and Napoleon's plan for a bold, early success was spoiled by mass surrenders and bad fodder for the cavalry horses. Though the battle of Borodino was militarily indecisive, the French troops were seriously demoralized.

Small Comfort For Davie

By RICHARD JACKSON
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

IN politics, it may safely be suggested, old hostilities never die . . . and seldom even fade away.

That "reconciliation" Conservative Leader Diefenbaker was supposed to have had the other day with Davie Fulton, his former justice and public works minister, must have been a dandy.

When asked directly about it initially, he brushed off all questions with a gruff reminder that such a conference was "private" and really "nobody's business but mine and Davie's."

And that took care of that—except that from the way the conversation drifted and a few hints the Diefenbaker staff dropped, it seemed that while there had been no wild embraces in an emotional scene of forgiveness, at least there could have been a new and perhaps sympathetic understanding.

Too, the impression was left that while John Diefenbaker was still no swinging Fulton fan, and likely would do little, if anything, to give him a handup into the leadership, he wouldn't deliberately or knowingly put anything in his way.

And that Davie Fulton could regard as positively helpful, for John Diefenbaker would be taking no such neutrally-friendly action in the case of some other leadership aspirant. He would, in hard fact, be out to clobber them.

Such was the clear impression left with this reporter in a short solo interview with the Conservative leader on his 30-minute supposed "reconciliation" conference with Davie Fulton.

But somewhere, somehow, the signals must have been crossed. Certainly they were mis-read. For as things are turning out now, that wasn't quite the way it finally seems to have shaped up.

Five days after that first interview, this reporter, together with another correspondent, the senior Ottawa representative of a national newspaper group, returned to John Diefenbaker's office for another fencing match of question and answer.

And this time, the Conservative leader came out clear and strong. Or did he?

This is how it went, after discussion of several other topics: Q. You saw Davie the other day.

A. I did. Q. What do you think of his leadership aspirations?

A. I think the same as the people of British Columbia thought of him.

Q. But in the provincial election he didn't elect a single member to the legislature, not even himself.

A. Correct.

Q. Oh, then that's the way it is, and that's different.

A. Well, you know he did get 10 per cent of the vote in that election, didn't he?

Q. But 10 per cent of a vote isn't much.

A. No, it isn't, is it?

Q. In fact, it's pretty awful.

A. You think so? Q. Then you don't think much of him or his chances?

A. I didn't say that. I said I think the same as the people of British Columbia thought of him.

Now, John Diefenbaker is a mercurial man, almost unpredictable, highly emotional, often deeply sentimental.

But as a trained lawyer and a professional politician all his life, he has an instinct for carefully choosing his words and saying what he means. And he is a very hard case. Tough. And he doesn't easily forgive or soon forget. Was he misunderstood, this second time with two reporters along, as he was the first time when only the one talked to him?

The two correspondents, just a little shaken by the implacability of the man, checked their notes and their impressions. They dove-tailed.

Poor Davie. When he told an Ottawa press conference recently that he knows now he should never have left the capital and his place in federal politics, he wasn't fooling. The Old Chief isn't letting bygones be bygones all that easily.

Napoleon's fate was sealed 153 years ago today—in 1812—when his army of 363,000 men began to cross the River Niemen, in East Prussia, for the epic advance on Moscow.

Russian Cruisers in Pacific For First Time in 60 Years

By EDWARD NEELAN, from Hong Kong
Russian naval cruisers are in evidence in the Pacific Ocean for the first time in 60 years.

Presence of the modern Russian cruisers and other Soviet naval craft in Pacific waters is being mentioned increasingly in intelligence reports reaching Hong Kong.

At least two and perhaps as many as four or five Russian cruisers are understood to be part of the Soviet Union's Pacific fleet. These are backed up by some 20 to 30 modern destroyers.

Russia's navy has about 400 submarines. About 30 of these are operating in the Pacific.

The presence of the Russian cruisers marks the first time since the Russo-Japanese war of 1905 that Moscow has sent cruisers in any number into the Pacific.

Infiltration in Algeria

Reds Pull Strings?

Algeria's single party political system has been dangerously infiltrated by a militant communist faction.

Officially, the communist party does not exist in Algeria but Communists control the left wing of the National Liberation Front (FLN), the nation's single legal party, and are playing an increasingly important role in it.

Defence Minister Houari Boumedienne, who led the coup against deposed president Ahmed Ben Bella, is believed to be a student and admirer of Communist Chinese boss Mao Tse-tung. As a fervent Arab nationalist, however, he helped Ben Bella impose the one-party system that prevented the establishment of other parties, including the communist party.

Ben Bella had tried to deal with the communist minority existing in Algeria by simply absorbing it into the FLN.

But a recent decision indicates how subtly Algerian Reds are moving toward greater political influence.

The announcement concerned the merger of two of Algeria's most important dailies into a single new publication. They are the communist daily Alger Republicain and the FLN's Le Peuple. The new newspaper is called El Moudjahid (the Freedom Fighter).

By
ALAIN de LYBOT
From Paris

Officially, under the single party system, Alger Republicain was not strictly speaking a communist paper. But its editor, Henri Alg, is an old-time French communist who has become an Algerian citizen. The whole staff of the paper, recruited by him, is communist.

Most of its members will be working for El Moudjahid and will obviously influence its policy. Alg has not sought and is not being given a post in the new paper in order to minimize the suspicion of a communist takeover but his second-in-command will have an executive post.

Alg, however, is being given a new job training young Algerian journalists and will therefore be in an excellent position to influence the young intellectual elite.

Much of Ben Bella's attempt to turn Algeria into what he called an "Islamic Socialist" state had been inspired by communist doctrines. It meant the nationalization of all industries, the takeover of practically all the remaining French interests and an agrarian reform along Marxist lines.

This has not helped the Algerian economy which is still in dire circumstances and would be totally bankrupt without French financial aid, massive U.S. food supplies and the income of petroleum exploitation developed and still managed by the French.

By effectively pushing Marxist doctrine, Algerian communists have managed to assert their own role and now their political position following the overthrow of Ben Bella is an important one. No single member has attempted to gain an important personal position that might arouse suspicion. It is hard to discern the actual percentage of the FLN which is communist. Estimates place it at about 20 to 25 per cent.

Ben Bella shared many of their viewpoints but he was a political pragmatist unwilling to tie himself to any faction within the FLN.

Religious Rift In Viet Nam Prevents Peace

By WENDELL MERRICK, from Saigon

One pre-requisite of peace in Viet Nam is stable government in Saigon. What prevents this is not merely political or military-civilian rivalries; the roots lie deep in religious conflict.

Viet Nam is essentially a Buddhist country, but when it was part of the French empire, and later under President Ngo Dinh Diem, the third son of a Roman Catholic mandarin at the court of Annam, the Catholics got most of the privileges. Virtually all Viet Nam schools were under Catholic control or influence, and to a considerable degree still are.

But the coin has been flipped over since that fateful November 1, 1963, when Diem's regime was torn asunder and he and his brother were assassinated.

It was the public suicide of a Buddhist in June of that year that eventually led to Diem's overthrow. It was a Buddhist pressure in the following year that kept governments moving in and out of office.

For the Buddhists, to whom politics are supposed to be foreign, had now found themselves able to wield enormous political power.

In October last year the able mayor of Saigon, Tran Van Huong, was named prime minister. He was a Buddhist, but it was the Buddhists who destroyed him.

They loosed crowds in the streets to demonstrate, and behind the scenes put pressure on the commander-in-chief, General Nguyen Khanh, and in January this year, General Khanh booted Huong out of office. Why? Because the Buddhists alleged he was being too soft on the Catholics.

Every pressure group in the country submitted its own choice as successor. General Khanh and the military finally compromised with Dr. Phan Huy Quat, a slender, pipe-smoking physician who didn't particularly want the job.

It was a delicate and dangerous game, playing both sides against the middle, the middle being Quat himself. When it came to deciding whether he should make civilian appointments (to replace army officers in civil service jobs) on the basis of ability or religion, he tried to do a bit of both.

For his first 100 days Quat did a good job keeping the peace—too good for either the Catholics or the Buddhists to assuage him openly.

Their chance came with the discovery that ex-Colonel Pham Ngoc Thao, the leader of an abortive coup in February, was plotting anew. On May 20, the government rounded up 50 members of Thao's ring and announced that some of them were Viet Cong agents. Unfortunately for Quat some of those arrested were Catholics.

There was an outcry and protests that the prime minister was accusing Catholics of intriguing with the Communists. Quat tried to get the message across that religion had nothing to do with it. The Catholics turned him out and wouldn't listen.

About the same time the Southern Buddhists accused Quat of favoring the Northern Buddhists who dominate the United Buddhist Association. Since the Catholics were accusing Quat of much the same thing, but for different reasons, the two religious factions found themselves reluctant allies.

When Quat introduced his reshuffled cabinet to chief of state, Phan Khac Suu, on May 25, he got a shock. Southern Buddhists and Northern Catholics had needed and cajoled old Suu—who is supposed to be a mere figurehead—into resigning pressure from the military to do what Quat wanted. But the Buddhist Association joined with the generals. This produced stalemate.

It was true that Buddhists were getting the plums, especially in the armed forces; Catholics were being eased into lesser commands. It was true that Catholics had been arrested. It was true also that little had been done to erase the French mark on Viet Nam's education system. It was not true, however, that in all cases religion had been the key factor.

The effort to change the school system had proved difficult because of the shortage of non-Catholic teachers. Which was better, Quat was forced to ask—a Catholic school or no school at all? And no answer would satisfy everybody.

As for arresting Catholics, it was hardly Quat's fault that Catholics led by Father Guynh had backed the conspirator Colonel Thao and even hidden him in a church.

If the religious factions were to recognize that there must be co-operation among them lest the alternative they dread—atheism—swallow Viet Nam, there might be some bright prospect. But it seems likely to be years before the Vietnamese accept that keeping religion out of politics does not mean suppression of religion.

Quat had not solved the problem when, on June 12, the military stepped in and took over power, making the sixth change of government since the overthrow of Diem; nor does it seem likely that it will be solved by whatever civilian government follows his.

Car Driver Sues Pony Owner

A hearing continues in the Law Courts Friday of a case where a Victoria lawyer is suing the owner of a horse for damages.

Louis Lindholm, 3700 Beach Drive, is claiming $1,141.66 in damages paid to have been caused to his car when he swerved to avoid the horse, a three-year-old Welsh pony owned by Robert F. Richardson, 3825 Sooke Road.

No Thalidomide Cases In Victoria Hospitals

Victoria has had no recurrence of thalidomide-type deformities in newborn babies, medical men say.

In Halifax last week, Dr. Gustave Gingras, a leading expert on the treatment of thalidomide victims, said more babies are being born with deformed limbs.

In 1962, mothers in Europe and North America who had used the sedative thalidomide while pregnant gave birth to babies with limbs shrunken like seal flippers. Some had no limbs at all.

Victoria had one such infant whose affliction was traced to thalidomide.

Dr. Gingras said he doesn't know what has caused the apparent recurrence of the deformity.

Spokesmen for Royal Jubilee and St. Joseph's hospitals here said Tuesday that no such infant has been born with seal limbs since thalidomide was banned.

Youth's Fifth Conviction Nets Six-Month Term

Fifth time unlucky was the case for a 20-year-old youth who appeared Wednesday in city magistrate's court.

William Wayne Lloyd, 720 Kings, pleaded guilty to driving while under suspension, without a muffler and while being an uninsured minor.

It was Lloyd's fifth conviction within two years for driving while under suspension, court was told.

Magistrate William Oster sentenced the youth to six months imprisonment on the suspension charge and fined him $25 and $10 respectively for having no insurance and no muffler.

John B. Chisholm, 2055 Sooke Road, pleaded guilty to being in care or control of a car while impaired and was fined $25. His licence was also suspended.

Police found him behind the wheel of a car on a Burnside parking lot Tuesday evening. A subsequent breathalyzer test showed a reading of .17 per cent.

In Saanich court, 24-year-old David Bleasdale, 1790 Denman, was convicted of wilful damage to a supermarket cart. Bleasdale, who had pleaded not guilty, was fined $25.

Sgt. Frank Briers of Saanich police testified he observed Bleasdale driving a pickup truck in the front area of the Town and Country Shopping Plaza on the evening April 22. He said he saw Bleasdale reach out, grasp a shopping cart, drive along with it for about 300 feet, then release it so it struck a concrete planter.

Sgt. Briers said that in his opinion Bleasdale had deliberately aimed the cart at the planter. The cart was subsequently found to be damaged.

NEREPLY TRYING

Bleasdale testified he had merely been trying to get the cart out of the way in case someone drove into it.

Magistrate Oster said he felt that, if Bleasdale had wanted to remove the cart, he could have maneuvered his vehicle so the passenger with him could have operated the cart.

Kanester Talks In Own Defence

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Victoria man charged with the rape of a University of Victoria co-ed said Wednesday he had intercourse with her, but denied the rape charge.

Larry Kanester, previously convicted on the charge and granted a new trial on appeal, was testifying in his own defence.

Three members of the Saanich police department, which handled the investigation, also testified.

Prowlers in Dorm?

Police took dogs to the Norfolk House School dormitory at 628 St. Charles early Wednesday after prowlers apparently tried several windows and opened one. One prowler jumped 15 feet from a second-floor exit after police arrived and a black station wagon sped quickly away while police searched for him.

TORONTO (CP)—The Queen Mother arrived Wednesday for a five-day private visit and received a cheery welcome amid a colorful flurry of flags and flowers, gaily-colored summer dresses and the glitter of military uniforms.

It was informal as the Queen Mother, always smiling, waved to the crowds and chatted easily with all who were presented to her.

Busy Schedule

Soon after her arrival she left for Windfields, the home of industrialist E. P. Taylor—her residence for the visit. Today she has a busy schedule that includes a visit to the Red Cross Lodge, luncheon with Lieutenant-Governor Earl Rowe of Ontario, Mrs. Rowe and 150 guests, and a grand banquet at night.

The cream-colored cement plaza outside the new administration building at Toronto International Airport made an ideal setting for the reception. Union Jacks, new Canadian flags and Ontario Red Ensigns fluttered in the stiff breeze. Hordes of spectators, mainly children in brief summer clothing, cheered as the Queen Mother stepped from the aircraft wearing a vivid green silk dress and matching flowered hat.

At the foot of the ramp to meet her was Governor-General Georges Vanier, accompanied by Mrs. Vanier wearing a purple dress and a lilac flowered hat.

With them was Trade Minister Mitchell Sharp, representing Prime Minister Pearson, and Mrs. Sharp, wearing a forest green suit with white hat.

Drawn up before the Queen Mother was a 100-man guard of honor of the Toronto Scottish Regiment, of which she is colonel-in-chief, in full dress kit of bodden grey, their cross-belts and medals glittering.

Presents Colors

Highlight of her visit comes Friday night when she presents new colors to her regiment. The Queen Mother, also colonel-in-chief of the 1st Battalion London Scottish Territorial Army, accepted a similar position with the Toronto sister unit in 1937. Two years later she presented new colors during a visit to Canada with the late King George VI.

Other highlights will be her visit to the National Stud Farm near Ottawa Friday and the running of the Queen's Plate stakes at Woodbine Saturday. The Queen Mother, one of Britain's most successful race horse owners, will present the 50 "Queen's guineas" to the winner.

Stock Split Gaining

By HARRY YOUNG
Business Editor

Interprovincial Pipe Line Co., which has been waiting for months to obtain legislative permission to split its stock five-for-one, got a stage nearer Wednesday when the Commons gave the bill second reading.

The NDP, which opposed the split a year ago, now appears to favor the move in principle, and one of its members, Arnold Peters, suggested the split should be 50-for-one instead of five-for-one.

MORE ACCESSIBLE

Mr. Peters said the announced purpose of the split was to make the pipeline's shares now selling at $90 each more accessible to the small investor.

Under the five-for-one split Interprovincial shares should sell around $18. Mr. Peters thought they would be more attractive still if they were split to sell at $1.80 each.

INTERLOCK ENDED

C. Powell Morgan, the president of Atlantic Acceptance, has resigned from the board of Commodore Business Machines, following the lead of two of his Atlantic colleagues, W. P. Gregory and C. A. Medland, who resigned from Commodore last week.

Atlantic Acceptance, in receivership and with an unpredictable future, now has no interlocking directorate with Commodore, a Toronto company which recently purchased the assets of Wilson Stationery.

HELPER NEEDED

Atlantic Acceptance, which was caught with $18,000,000 of short term notes it could not meet, now is reported to be seeking a sale of its assets to another financial organization which would have the credit to carry it through the present difficulties.

Atlantic owes about $120,000,000 and has outstanding accounts with a paper value of $145,000,000. No estimate of their collectability has yet been made public.

FORD SALE SUCCESS

The sale of 6,000,000 shares of Ford Motor Co. by the Ford Foundation appears to have been an outstanding success, despite the current stock market weakness.

Offered to the public at $32½ (U.S. funds) the shares found a ready market and many allocations had to be reduced, although several U.S. brokerage houses were still able to offer stock at a price of $32½.

VICTORIANS AT IDA

Victoria will be represented at the annual general meeting of the Investment Dealers Association of Canada by Lou Williams of Magar Investments and Jack Trumpy of Dominion Securities. The meeting starts Thursday at Jasper and continues until Saturday. Mr. Williams is a former chairman of the IDA Pacific division.

QUICK BOND SALE

A new bond issue by Dominion Coal and Steel is reported to have been sold out in quick time.

It consisted of $15,000,000 six per cent debentures maturing

July 1985. Of these $10,000,000 were sold privately and the remaining $5,000,000 was offered to the public at $8.50 to yield 6.15 per cent.

SUCCESSFUL STUDENTS

Further local passes in the Investment Dealers Association of Canada's No. 1 educational course have been reported. Successful in passing the examinations are Barry Casson, James Richardson and Ross, Jack Frame and W. G. Neill, both of Nesbitt Thomson and Co.

RAY'S NEW VENTURE

Burnaby is to have another major shopping centre in the near future. It will have the Hudson's Bay Company and Canada Safeway as its major attractions. Burnaby council has given initial approval for the rezoning of 46 acres scheduled to be built at a cost of $12,000,000 for completion in 1967.

HALF-MILLION SALES

Results for the first quarter of the current year suggest that Dominion Stores will have another record year with sales topping $500,000,000, says T. G. Metcalfe, president. Dominion Stores' financial year ends in March. Last year's sales were $487,735,081.

competitive situation. Many of the major industries, however, had served advance notice that they would seek temporary deferments from selected sections of the code.

SERVED NOTICE

The Labor Code Act approved by Parliament earlier this year provides that a company or industry may be excluded from the wage or hours-of-work sections for up to 18 months.

Industries Delay Minimum Wages

OTTAWA (CP)—The new federal labor code, setting a $1.25 hourly minimum wage and 40-hour work week, will become law in seven days but its immediate effect is expected to be negligible.

Practically every industry covered by the code has made application to Labor Minister MacEachen for the temporary deferments provided.

The flood of such applications has been so heavy that it probably will be impossible to make decisions on them before the code's July 1 starting date. Industries are automatically exempted until a ruling is handed down accepting or rejecting their contention that immediate application of the code would be harmful to them.

ENTIRE INDUSTRIES

A labor department official said Wednesday more than 40 applications are already in, some from individual companies and others covering entire industries.

Among them are believed to be the railways, shipping lines, inter-provincial truckers, airlines, grain elevators and feed mills. A few of the applications have been filed by unions.

The applications cover an estimated 300,000 of the 400,000 workers whose job minimums will be controlled by the new law. It applies only to the handful of industries that come under federal jurisdiction.

The labor department has declined to make public the list of applicants on the grounds the information would harm their

What Interest Do Your Savings Earn Free of Risk or Worry? ... 3% ... 5% ... or What?

By transferring savings to guaranteed Trans-Canada Joint Mortgages, your money starts earning 7½ immediately. This more than doubles income from savings now earning 3½ and increases income from investments earning 5½ by nearly 40%.

Banks, Trust and Insurance Companies invest a major portion of their funds in residential first mortgages. You can do the same through our unique joint mortgage investment plan.

At 7½ interest compounded semi-annually, investments double in 18 years, triple in 28 years. Or you may draw interest at 7½ per year paid quarterly. Non-speculative investments from $100 are fully secured by registered joint assignments of guaranteed first mortgages. There are no investment charges and money may be withdrawn at any time.

100 on Display Here

Bug in Persian Rug Boasts Costly Home

By IAN SMITH

Any bug that's snug in a Persian rug should darned well appreciate his position.

His home would cost a third as much as yours.

There are about 100 Persian rugs on display at the Empress Hotel today, and according to the man who runs the show, the most expensive are worth "several thousand" dollars.

ONE NAME
The man who runs the show is Naderallah, a lively young Iranian who spends his time assuring the western world that yes, Persian rugs are great, and yes, Iranians only use one name.

Naderallah, who is 24, has been in the rug business since he was about eight or ten years old. He has spent the last two months touring Canada with his $150,000 collection of carpet-work, re-acquainting Canadians with the value of Iranian handicraft.

Tonight he will get rid of the whole collection in an auction at the Empress Hotel starting at 7:30 p.m. The rugs will be on display until that time, with Naderallah there to explain things to the interested.

EARLY START
Assisting him will be Rafiullah, 22, who wove his first rug in Tehran when he was 12 but now spends his time talking about them.

They are both impressed with Canada ("It's a very nice country, with lots of opportunity for young people—but a bit cold") and rugs ("Foreign work is the best there is.")

Naderallah claims that a Persian rug is a better investment than a painting, and is quick to produce a brochure to back him up.

INVESTMENT
Says the booklet, "Prices of Iranian carpets have been increasing at an unbelievable rate. For many, it has proved a better investment than any other genre of art."

The workmanship in the rugs is undoubtedly superb, with rich colors, remarkably sun-resistant, produced by vegetable dyes which will not run.

Many of the designs are made by using different color hair rather than dyes. For example, one rug boasts brown camel hair and white wool from the chest (not the back, mind you, but the chest) of a few sheep.

Naderallah is full of such interesting items. Did you know, for instance, that a connoisseur doesn't even glance twice at the thickness of a rug, but rather counts the number of knots per square inch on the back?

Their prize carpet is one that hung for 300 years on a mosque in Kashan before it was picked up and carted across Canada.

The carpets are named after the towns in which they are produced, or after a tribe, and each design has been used by a particular group of carpet-makers for perhaps 1,000 years.

All hand-made, naturally they take anywhere from a couple of years to half a lifetime to produce.

Tory Rode to Power Aboard Old Bicycle

By FRASER KELLY
Colonist Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — This is the story of a man who rode to power on a secondhand bicycle and was sworn into the federal cabinet with a cigarette butt stored in his pocket.

It is also the story of a shrewd, successful politician who has served notice he intends to fight for the leadership of the Conservative party in Canada.

Mike Starr is no ordinary politician. The Conservative House leader has qualities which set him far apart from the other five men being touted as possible successors to Opposition leader Diefenbaker.

Man of Masses

The provincial premiers, Robarts, Roblin and Stanfield, and the two former federal ministers, E. Davie Fulton and George Hees, are in varying degrees urbane, articulate and sophisticated.

They are men set apart from the masses, men elevated on pedestals by their images. Mike Starr on the other hand is OF the masses. And he's proud of it.

Unlike the others, Starr has built his career without the benefit of money, influence or formal schooling. Yet he became the first Canadian of Ukrainian descent to hold a cabinet post in this country (labor in the Diefenbaker years). Now as caucus chairman and party House leader he still wields real power.

Michael Starr was born in Conner Cliff, Ont., on Nov. 14, 1910. He was the oldest of six children in a poor family. He learned hard work and frugality very young, and both have stayed with him.

Into Pocket

The latter quality was perfectly illustrated on a hot June day in 1957 as he walked up the steps to Parliament Hill on his way to be sworn in as labor minister.

Newsmen saw him pause, stuff out his half-smoked cigarette and shove it into his pocket. As he left the buildings a short time later he fished out the butt and lit up again.

Mr. Starr had to quit school at 15 to help support his family. He sweated as a $5-a-week printer's devil and a 15-cent-an-hour picture framer.

By the time he was 17 financial pressures on his family had eased, so he enrolled in a commercial school. His natural ability and hard work paid off — he averaged 80 per cent in 13 subjects in the single year.

Armed with his commercial diploma he joined an Ottawa sheet metal firm where he rose steadily to manager of special sales. But he had been bitten by the political bug.

Three times he ran and lost, before he was elected alderman in Ottawa. During the winning campaign he gathered votes by pedaling over the city's humpy roads on a second-hand bicycle.

He became mayor of the motor city in 1949, and held the job until 1952. In 1951 he made an unsuccessful bid for a seat in the Ontario legislature. In six months he was elected to the House of Commons in a by-election.

He has won every federal election since with a substantial majority.

Mr. Starr is no orator. His speeches are solid, workmanlike and unspectacular. Yet they win him friends.

During the last three federal elections he was one of his party's most sought-after spokesmen. As such he has spoken all over the country—a factor that could help him win delegate votes at a convention.

The same steady resolve and efficiency work enormous capacity for work characterized his term as labor minister. Time and again—such as during the railway dispute in 1956—he demonstrated an unusual capacity for conciliation.

It's as a conciliatory, middle-of-the-road candidate with proven political judgment that Mr. Starr will present himself as a leadership candidate.

Report Bad Taste Says B.C. Reeve

COQUITLAM (CP) — Reeve James Christmas Wednesday termed a government commissioner's report into alleged misuse of municipal land as "political and in bad taste."

He said the report, which said the municipal council's handling of a land sale was "incredibly stupid" and the reeve's conduct "reprehensible," should not have been made public until it was turned over to the cabinet.

A statement in commissioner Gilmour Clark's report that the matter could be left to the electorate was "political," he said.

The reeve said neither he nor council had ever denied there was a mistake in the land deal involving municipal assessor William Joyce but the report "does nothing to resolve the mistake."

Tiny Aphid Major Forest Problem

An insect one-30th of an inch long could have "an extremely dangerous effect" on B.C. balsam crops and Fraser River flooding, forester Mike Zachary of Victoria said Wednesday.

The villain is Aedes piceae, the balsam woolly aphid, which is attacking trees in the Victoria and mid-island areas.

The aphid breaks down the fibres of a tree for nourishment, and in doing so, secretes a fluid which causes malformations in the tree's cellular structure.

"The tree does not die quickly, within one season, Mr. Zachary said.

SLOW PROCESS
"It is a slow, lingering process, like cancer. It can take 10 years for the tree to die."

In severe cases, the aphids can kill the tree in two years.

There is an infestation of aphids at Thetis Lake park, and an infestation was discovered near Ladysmith last week.

The B.C. Forestry Service has a team of six workers out searching for and assessing infestations.

It takes an insect to kill the aphid.

The aphid can be controlled by chemicals, but because it ticks itself away in hidden recesses of trees, chemicals are ineffective.

To counter this, thousands of German ladybird beetles will be released in Thetis Lake park.

The beetle eats the aphid. If the outbreak becomes serious, B.C.'s balsam reserves could be ruined, Mr. Zachary said.

"Not only that, what happens if the aphid hits the balsam on the Coast Range? With no trees to hold back the snow, Fraser flooding could be affected."

The aphids sometimes cause growths called "galls" on the trees.

"One Victoria nursery is taking these gaily trees and selling them at higher prices than healthy specimens. They justify this by telling the customer he is getting a unique tree," said Mr. Zachary.

Parks Opening July 5 For Oak Bay Youth

The Oak Bay Recreation Commission has announced a summertime fun program of tennis and supervised play in municipal parks.

Supervised play in Carnarvon and Windsor Parks for youngsters from five to 12 years will begin July 5. Supervision will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Tennis instruction will take place Tuesdays and Thursdays from July 6 in Carnarvon Park and Wednesdays and Fridays in Windsor Park, starting July 7.

A physical education program sponsored by the YMCA will take place Tuesdays and Thursdays at 7 p.m. starting July 6 for children eight and over.

Further information can be obtained from R. H. Craig at EV 4-3006.

Some people buy a '65 Studebaker for love. Some for the money.

There are 28 other reasons!

The 1965 Studebaker is an attractively styled car. And an attractively priced car. But if you'd like more persuasive reasons for buying one, read on.

Without over-asking, you get a heavy-gauge steel body, sturdy Armor-Guard frame construction for added safety and longer life, padded dashboard, full instrumentation, luxury interiors with door-to-door rugs (on many models), Dual-System safety brakes, big 15" wheels for less tire wear, aluminumized rustproofing, windshield washers—all standard equipment. And lots more besides.

In the Daytona Sports Sedan you even get a transistorized ignition system. Too, at no extra cost. That means instant ignition with sure fire starts, far longer life for plugs and points, less frequent tune-ups. Available in all other Studebaker models for very little more.

All this, plus a choice of two great new engines—a super thrifty six and a fleet-footed V-8. Both are misers on gas—regular gas!

So, if looks won't sell you, and money is no object, there are many more reasons for buying Studebaker.

Come in—take a look, take a ride, make a deal.

Saturday Deadline For Swim Entries

By BILL STAYDAL

Hey, Mom, it's time to get together a swim kit.

The Colonist's 13th annual free swim class begins July 5, and registrations are coming in by the hundreds to beat this Saturday's deadline — June 26.

So Margie Naymith, chief instructor of the class since it began, once again urges parents of her soon-to-be swim pupils:

"Please get a good, water-proof bag to carry swim suit and towel."

A paper bag is no good because it disintegrates soon after water hits it. Each year Mrs. Naymith collects lost swim trunks, towels, T-shirts and swim caps which have dropped from melting bags.

You don't have to spend anything for a bag between now and July 5 when instruction begins in Victoria (July 2 in Duncan).

A plastic five or 10-pound potato bag is ideal.

Besides the bag, swim suit and towel, all that's needed is a bathing cap for girls.

Preparations are moving ahead for the classes at Hamsterley Beach on Elk Lake, and at Queen Margaret School in Duncan.

The public address system used at Hamsterley Beach is being repaired. It was pure coincidence, of course, but the loudspeaker over which Mrs. Naymith's home instruction begins broke down on the final day of classes last year.

Saturday at 5 p.m. is the last moment for applications. Fill out the accompanying enrollment form; the only cost is a five-cent stamp.

Each child will get one lesson a week for eight weeks.

Alphabetical class lists of children in the Victoria area will appear in the Colonist Thursday, July 1, and again on Sunday, July 4.

Lists of Duncan classes will be in the Colonist on Wednesday, June 30.

A child can improve his water wisdom in the special advanced class for those who can already swim 60 feet.

For Victoria, a limited number of bus tickets is still available. Eight round trips from North Ward School to Elk Lake and back can be had for $2.75. The tickets can be bought in the Colonist editorial office between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

King Fisherman

Big Chinook Club Derby In Saanich Inlet Sunday

Saanich Inlet's Chinook Club will hold its annual derby Sunday from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. for the big-time anglers who have caught 20-pound or heavier spring salmon to qualify as members of the exclusive club.

At stake will be the Dr. Hugh Clarke Sportsman's Cup for the heaviest salmon and weigh-in stations will be at the Anchorage, Halls, and Holders.

REMINDER GIVEN

A fine array of prizes for both big fish and hidden weights is on show at Stan Williams Sports Shop, across from the post office.

Chinook anglers are reminded any fish 5 pounds or heavier may also be weighed in The Daily Colonist King Fisherman Contest.

A good run of smallish coho hit the Flamingo Arm waters at the weekend.

SHOULD HAVE READ

In Wednesday's list of King Fisherman entries Fred L. Sawyer was shown with two 6.5-pound bass and W. A. Sawyer with two 8.1-pound bass.

The entry forms were not read properly and the list should have read as 2.5-pounders and 2.1-pounders respectively.

Bobby, Boss Differ On Parting

NEW YORK (AP)—A new book by author Theodore H. White says President Johnson and Robert F. Kennedy told different versions of how Johnson informed Kennedy in 1964 that Kennedy would not be vice-president.

In the book, The Making of the President—1964, White says both the president and Kennedy agreed on Kennedy's parting remark: "I could have helped you, Mr. President."

White says that, "as the president told it, it sounded wistful. As Bobby's friends told it, it had the smack of sardonic humor."

Johnson told his version of the conversation with Kennedy to three Washington correspondents in confidence, but it was soon "the talk of the town," says White.

White continues: "Several days later the attorney-general (Kennedy) met the president again and protested this breach of confidence. The president assured the attorney-general that he hadn't told anyone about their conversation."

The attorney-general observed directly to the president that the president was not telling the truth. The president said he would check his records and calendar to see whether he had forgotten some conversation he might have had."

White says Johnson had told the correspondents that when he had informed Kennedy he wasn't going to ask him to be on his election ticket, the attorney-general gulped—and Johnson demonstrated the gulp.

White says Johnson told the correspondents he had then offered Kennedy the post of election campaign manager. Kennedy said no.

White says that after Johnson's version leaked out, friends of Kennedy gave the attorney-general's account. White tells the Kennedy version this way: "The president had looked at the wall, then looked at the floor, then said that he'd been thinking about the vice-presidency in terms of who'd be the biggest help to the country and the party—and of help to him, personally, and that person was not Bobby."

The attorney-general had said fine, according to the Kennedy version, and offered to help and support Johnson. The friends said Kennedy had been "restrained" during the talk because he noticed a tape recorder was on.

The Kennedy account said Johnson offered Kennedy his choice of jobs, but Kennedy said he preferred to remain attorney-general.

Steps Outlined

Halt Atomic Spread Kennedy Asks LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Robert F. Kennedy called on President Johnson Wednesday to give "central priority" to efforts to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons.

Kennedy said in a prepared Senate speech that the United States cannot wait for peace in Southeast Asia or for the solution of any other problem to move against the proliferation of nuclear weapons by at least a dozen countries able to produce them within three years.

"The need to halt the spread of nuclear weapons must be of central priority in American policy," Kennedy said. "Of all our major interests, this now deserves and demands the greatest additional effort."

"Should nuclear weapons become generally available to the world," he said, "any crisis of the moment might well become the last crisis for all mankind."

The New York Democrat said the 1963 limited nuclear test-ban treaty had been hailed as the first of many actions for peace "but we have not yet taken the second step."

Kennedy proposed:

- That the United States initiate negotiations with the Soviet Union on a non-proliferation treaty in which all countries—friendly or otherwise—would get a two-power guarantee against nuclear blackmail.
- Explore the possible creation of nuclear-free zones in the world, particularly in Latin America and Africa.
- Extend the test-ban agreement to include detectable underground explosions.
- Freeze U.S. and Soviet nuclear stockpiles at their present level.
- Strengthen and support the international atomic energy agency.

St. John Honors

Law Professor Promoted

OTTAWA (CP)—Col. John Redmond Roche of Montreal has been appointed chief commissioner of the St. John Ambulance Brigade and promoted to the rank of Knight of Grace in the ancient order.

His name heads the honors list of 253 Canadians receiving promotions in the order, announced by Governor-General Vanier Wednesday. He is Prior of the Order of St. John of Canada.

Col. Roche, 58, is a judge of the Montreal District Court and a professor of criminal law at the University of Montreal.

He succeeds former RCMP commissioner L. H. Nicholson.

Others promoted to the rank of Knight of Grace include:

Charles William Edmonds of Winnipeg, a retired businessman who has been associated with the order since 1923; John Errol Lytle of Edmonton, an investment dealer who has been associated with the order for 25 years as a financial director; and Frederick William Watkins of Vancouver, a retired chartered accountant who now is financial adviser to the St.

John Council in British Columbia.

Commander Sister: Marjorie Edith Bertha Ellico, Winnipeg; Mrs. Mary Augusta Gibson Best, Saskatoon.

Civil Service Officials

B.C. Man Heads National Group

Dr. Hugh Morrison, chairman of the B.C. Civil Service Commission, has been elected 1965 president of the Conference of Civil Service Commissioners of Canada.

SECOND MEETING

He was named to the post following, meeting G. E. Perry of Halifax, chairman of the Nova Scotia Civil Service Commission, at the second annual conference of heads of the civil service in Ottawa and the 14 provinces here.

GOOD CONFERENCE

Dr. Morrison said delegates made a study of commission procedures across the nation and the resulting exchange of information made for a profitable conference.

M. E. Newton of Winnipeg, head of the Manitoba Civil Service Commission, was named vice-president and will chair the group's conference next year in the Manitoba capital.

H. G. A. Wilson, chairman of the Saskatchewan commission, was elected secretary-treasurer.

Convention Centre City Need

Victoria needs a convention centre, says Grant Johnston, chairman of the Victoria Jaycee convention committee.

Mr. Johnston says "we have the hotel accommodation to support large conventions, but there's no place to actually hold the meetings."

LARGE AUDITORIUM

"Victoria could become a convention centre as much as a tourist centre, but not until a large auditorium is built."

The Jaycees expect more than 500 at their convention in 1966, and Mr. Johnston says that "this is small compared to what we could have from other organizations."

"These people would love to hold conventions in Victoria. It's up to us to take advantage of it, to provide the building."

3,466 Lost By Forces

OTTAWA (CP)—A total of 3,466 professional and other skilled people have resigned or been compulsorily retired from the armed forces in the last two years, Associate Minister Cadieux said Wednesday.

He said the largest monthly number—310—occurred in September last year, the month after integration of the headquarters command and structure was announced.

Wasp Bites Man

A wasp sting sent Charles Wightman, 6104 Tyndall, to Royal Jubilee Hospital Tuesday night. He was in satisfactory condition. He was moving a lawn at 3805 Cadboro Bay when the wasp bit.

Years in Minutes

By CHARLES LA VERTU

It was only a matter of minutes, but it covered a dozen years of education.

It was graduation time Wednesday, and completely different ceremonies took place in Sooke and Victoria school districts.

At Belmont Senior High School there were 51 Grade 12 students and at Edward Milne High School, 25 Grade 12 students, while in each of Strawberry Vale and other elementary schools in Victoria, a score or more of kindergarten students graduated.

Award ceremonies were held earlier at Central Junior High School.

Valedictorian at Belmont Senior High was Buntly Baines while that at Edward Milne was Anne Van Ek.

Guest speaker at Edward Milne was Duncan Lorrimer, vice-principal of Victoria Senior High School, and guest speaker at Belmont was district superintendent E. E. Hyndman.

Receiving major awards at Belmont were Buntly Baines, $100 scholarship, Green Challenge Trophy and $25, and staff proficiency award; Mary Ellen Foley, $100 scholarship, and Bonnie Barrett Colwood Bursary Fund $50; Murray Johnston, $100 scholarship; Susan York, Colwood District

Scholastic awards at Edward

Milne will not be given until late August or early September, according to principal E. A. Maglio.

He said they would be based on results of government exams.

Awards presented earlier at Edward Milne were Citizenship rose bowl, Dianne Soderberg; and track and field awards to Susan Peterson, junior girls; Donald Green, junior boys; Marilyn Partridge, intermediate girls; John Baranus, senior boys; Patricia Soutar, senior girls, and Charles Glinz, senior boys.

In Sooke school district—Claremont Senior High School and North Sooke Junior and Senior High School—graduation exercises will not be held until September.

A spokesman said the date had yet to be decided.

Major athletic awards at Central Junior High School went to Janette Hammer and Len Roache.

Other winners were Gloria Young and Christopher Hambro, track; Joanne Boldt and Pat Skilling, badminton; Irene De Wolfe and Barrie Moon, basketball; Betty Shelley and Derek Allan, gymnastics.

Also honored were Roger Skilling, tennis; Rick Baldwin, soccer; Lucy Teague and Arthur Chin, volleyball; and Linda Sturrock, Time Magazine.

Outstanding safety patrol member was John Parker, who won the Foxford Shield. Scholastic leaders will be honored in the fall.

At Rocky Point for Year

Condemned Ammo Stays

A shipment of condemned ammunition which was hauled into the north Pacific in an abortive dumping mission last week will stay in the navy's Rocky Point arsenal—probably until next year.

The ammunition dumping program has been postponed because the ship CMV Laymore used in the dumping operations is scheduled for refitting at HMC Dockyard, a naval spokesman said Wednesday.

The auxiliary vessel was carrying condemned ammunition to sea last week when her steering jammed, causing her to become unmanageable in the extremely high seas, and forced her crew of 17 to abandon ship.

Laymore returned to port Sunday after a towline had been placed aboard the abandoned ship by a navy diving team.

The old ammunition will be kept in storage at Rocky Point until next spring or summer when it is expected the dumping program will be resumed.

The Laymore, scheduled to be transformed into a research vessel for the Pacific Naval Laboratory, will complete her refit late this year.

Witnesses Need Billets

More than 4,000 Jehovah's Witnesses will attend the Watch Tower Convention at Memorial Arena July 1 to 4.

Delegates will come from six provinces and 15 states, and more than 250 Witnesses from local congregations are searching for billets for delegates and families.

Local workers will build a cafeteria near the arena, big enough to feed the 4,000 delegates in 1½ hours.

Drifting Boat Returned Today

A Pleasure for Crafty Navy

The navy will have the pleasure this morning of returning a pleasure craft which was lost by a pleasure craft.

An unoccupied 20-foot boat was spotted adrift about seven miles east of Race Rocks by the navy's ocean escort HMCS Antigonish around 3 p.m. Wednesday.

Antigonish on trials in the area, took the small boat in tow and, when a harbor craft from HMC Dockyard met the ocean escort off Esquimalt to transfer civilian technicians back to the naval base, it also brought the 20-foot pleasure craft into the dockyard.

Papers found in the small boat showed it to be owned by Roderick W. Kenaston of San Diego.

On further investigation the navy found the 20-foot boat had been in tow of a 40-foot yacht named Tyee, which had been cruising in the area.

The Tyee was located in Victoria's Inner Harbor, and the owners were advised their small boat was safe and sound at the dockyard.

No missing boat report had been received by police, navy or marine authorities.

It is expected the Tyee will enter Esquimalt harbor today and pick up its wayward 20-footer.

Secret of Saanich Success

Police Door Always Open

The welcome mat is out at Saanich police department for "municipal" visitors or anybody else, says the deputy chief.

J. H. (Joe) Armstrong, a veteran of 19 years with the force, is happy to see anyone, anytime.

"If you have nothing to be ashamed of then you shouldn't fear a visit by anybody," he says.

A report on the department by retired RCMP superintendent J. A. Henry lauded municipal visits during the chief's absence as breaches of propriety, "particularly when the nature and manner of such visits can be construed to be of a surveillance nature."

Supt. Henry was particularly referring to members of Saanich council or the police commission.

But 55-year-old Joe Armstrong, who is two years away from retirement, doesn't think this is a very hospitable attitude.

He recalls times when commissioners or councillors would ride around in patrol cars or drop into the police station to have coffee "with the boys."

Not only that, but the police station is always open to people "who just want to talk."

And there, says the former RCMP officer, "is the secret of our success as a police force—getting close to the people and being friends with the people."

This rapport between police and public is a helping factor, in investigations, he adds.

Moreover, Deputy Chief

Armstrong believes the force's morale is high because there is a friendly atmosphere, not a military one.

On the over-all report, he says it "has confirmed what I've been saying for years"—that more manpower is required.

The report recommended adding 10 more men to the force which will have 40 members by year's end.

Mr. Armstrong pointed out the force has "suffered" by doing a good job.

"If we hadn't done a good job more men would have been added before," he says.

But he believes the report was necessary as a supporting argument both for the force and the police commission when more men are required.

City Urged to Act

Hate Literature Spurs Protest

On July 1

Sidney Spruces For Big Day

The 76 trombones will not be there, but the big parade will take place at Sidney.

For added appeal, a helicopter ride for two has been offered as a prize.

Throw in games of chance, rides, refreshments, a stage show, a teen dance, a tropicana night and Presto, you have Sidney Day on Dominion Day.

First event of the day will be a pancake breakfast sponsored by the Sidney Lions Club.

Parade will leave Sidney Elementary School at 11 a.m. and follow Henry to Third, Mount Baker, Second, Beacon, Fifth, Oakville to Sanscha Park.

Opening ceremonies will be held at 12:15 p.m. when dignitaries, Miss Sidney and her princesses will be introduced.

Distribution of "vicious and violent" hate literature in Victoria was called to the attention of city council Wednesday.

Contents of an anti-Jehovah's Witnesses pamphlet, similar to one delivered to her home, would make many people ill, said Mrs. Violet Cox, 1712 Kings Road, and council should do something about it.

AUTHOR 'DISTURBED'

It is true, said Mrs. Cox, that people do not have to read the pamphlet, but many do and it does a lot of harm. She suspected that the author was mentally disturbed.

The pamphlet states that the Witnesses are spreading their "soul-destroying heresies" from door to door and unsuspecting people are being deluded by their teaching. The Witnesses believe as they do, the pamphlet states, because they have been brainwashed.

LACK OF FUNDS

Author of the message, the pamphlet states, is a working man, hampered only by lack of funds from sending out 1,000,000 such tracts.

Mrs. Cox states that she is not a Jehovah's Witness and knows very little about them.

Truckers Want

Faster Freight Service

Victoria trucking firms want the government to set up a fast, ferry freight service between the Island and the Mainland.

Company officials met Wednesday with Monty Aldous, general manager of B.C. Ferries, to discuss a freight rate increase which goes into effect July 15.

RATE INCREASE

It will boost the charge for drop trailers by 20 per cent or $7 a trailer.

Mr. Aldous said Wednesday the decision on the increase is final and will not be changed but a trucking spokesman said the companies will look for a better system of handling freight between here and Vancouver.

One possibility could be using one of the system's old ferries for a special freight-only service.

The spokesman pointed out the companies are spending about $250,000 a year on the ferry system and consider themselves important customers.

An increase in freight rates would have to be passed on to the customer, he added.

Obedience Club Adds to Fund

A gift from the Victoria Dog Obedience Club last week has swelled the SPCA building fund by another $500.

Total campaign goal is $12,000 which will be used for construction of the SPCA's projected cat run, an isolation building for sick animals, and an euthanasia building.

Robinson Remanded On Murder Charge

David Robinson, 24-year-old magistrate's court. His next janitor charged with the capital appearance was fixed for murder of Susan Fraschi, was June 30.

No date for a preliminary hearing has yet been set.

Tiny Tilikum Donated

Two highly-crafted and valuable models were added to the B.C. Maritime Museum's collection Wednesday by Victoria residents.

They were accepted by museum curator Col. J. W. D. Symons.

One is a 24-inch model of the Tilikum and the other a slightly larger model of the lifeboat, Dundee, presented to the aunt of a Victoria woman by the Royal National Lifeboat Society in 1981.

The Tilikum model was presented by Mrs. Nicholas A. Beaton, 688 Newport, who along with her late husband, Cmdr. Beaton, has been one of the city's most generous donors to the museum.

Mrs. Beaton said her husband, a noted model maker and yachtsman, had an autographed copy of the adventures of the Tilikum master, Capt. Voss, and therefore took a keen interest in the craft which now reposes in the maritime museum.

The delicately-finished model was made about 1941.

A silver plate affixed to the model of the lifeboat, Dundee, states it was presented to Mrs. Mary Hartley, of Bideford, England, in 1981.

Mrs. Hartley was the aunt of Mrs. Beatrix M. Dawson-Thomas, 851 Fairfield, who presented the model to the museum.

In addition to the model Mrs. Dawson-Thomas presented two paintings to the museum collection. One is of the lifeboat Dundee, in a raging sea and the other a portrait of a sturdy seaman who was the first coxswain of the Dundee.

Cmdr. Frederic E. Grubb, as assistant director of the museum, said he intends to get in touch with the Royal National Lifeboat Association to see if the coxswain can be identified.

The beautiful grounds of "Strawwood", 1800 Ferndale Road, will be the setting Saturday of the Parish of St. Dunstan Church garden party to be opened at 2 p.m. by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Pearson. Making last-minute arrangements are from left to right, Mrs. H. O. Watkins, Mrs. N. C. Powell, tea convener, and Mrs. D. W. Latimer. —(William A. Boucher)

Up-Island Wedding

Heirloom Gold Cross For 'Something Old'

Angela Margaret Knight became the bride of Mr. Roland Wayne Hilliard at pretty double-ring ceremony in St. Mark's Church, Qualicum Beach.

Rev. William Hills performed the afternoon wedding for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Knight, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Hilliard, all of Qualicum Beach.

Baskets of gladiolus, and stocks and a small wreath were at the altar steps for the ceremony. Wedding music was played by Mrs. Philip Watts and soloist was Mr. Watts.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in an exquisite floor-length gown of pink tulle de sole featuring lily-print sleeves and V-neckline. For "something old" she wore a heirloom gold cross. Her short bouffant veil was sprinkled with tiny roses and pearl-encrusted silver leaves. She carried a shower bouquet of pink sweetheart roses and lily-of-the-valley.

Mrs. John Baumer as matron of honor for her sister was gowned in pink chiffon and wore a matching picture hat. Bridesmaids, the Misses Susan McBeath Chamaus, and Sharon Sweeney, Duncan, wore pale green brocade gowns and a lily in their hair. The flower girl, the bride's young niece, Susan Bourke was in a pink nylon frock. All the attendants carried colonial bouquets of pink and white carnations.

Mr. Donald McRae, Qualicum Beach, was best man. Ushering were Mr. Michael Hilliard, groom's brother, and Mr. Art Hodgkinson.

For the reception which followed at Englecrest, the bride's table was centred with a three-tiered cake made by the groom's mother and decorated by Mrs.

J. Powell, Parksville. Toast to the bride was proposed by her godfather, Mr. C. B. McAllister. For a honeymoon trip on the west coast of Vancouver Island the bride donned a navy and white linen sheath, white hat and accessories.

The newlyweds are making their home at Qualicum Beach.

Dr. Hughes Receives Gift

GANGES, B.C. — Beautiful bouquets of flowers in patriotic colors decorated the tables for the annual dinner meeting of the H.M.S. Ganges Chapter IOOE, in the new dining room of the White Elephant Cafe. Mrs. O. L. Stanton, 1st vice-regent arranged the flowers and Mrs. Laurie Moust fashioned exquisite rose corsages which were presented to Rev. Dr. Norah Hughes and to Mrs. F. K. Parker, regent. Dr. Hughes addressed the meeting, her subject being "Statistical Mortality."

In thanking Dr. Hughes the regent expressed regret at losing her as a resident member of the chapter and wished her and Miss Herd, "bon voyage" upon their forthcoming holiday cruise and happiness in their new location. A sterling silver IOOE coffee spoon was presented to Dr. Hughes as a memento.

Beach Motif At Party

PARKSVILLE — Wall decorations consisting of beach-towels, sun-hats, star-fish, a very realistic octopus, and many other things carrying out the beach motif, created just the right atmosphere for the care-free Beachcombers' Party, put on in the Legion hall here by the Ladies' Auxiliary to Legion Branch 40.

The Tom Cats three-piece orchestra from Nanaimo provided the music for the dance which was attended by some 100 persons.

Prizes for spot dances were won by Betty Baker and partner, Jim Cuthbert; Pauline Tranfield and Bill Holmes; Mrs. J. Adams and Frank Luchinski of Port Alberni. Other prize winners were Pat Flynn for the most authentic beach attire, and in the novelty elimination dance, Mrs. Flynn won prizes for herself and partner, Jack McLeman, by not wearing earrings and sandals.

The imaginative and attractive art work for the decorations was carried out by Judy Lambert, and she received a gift from the Auxiliary in appreciation. Mrs. T. S. Floyd was in charge of decorating the hall, and was assisted by Ruth Murrant and Dot Cochran.

General convener was Prudence Beuselinck, with Mrs. D. E. Stewart, Mrs. C. Baker, Mrs. H. F. Butler, and Mrs. P. Tranfield assisting in the kitchen.

Sheila Mae Corfield, 22, of 1850 Chandler Avenue, graduated recently as an Air Canada stewardess following an intensive five-week course in Montreal. Miss Corfield was born in Victoria and received her education here. Before joining Air Canada in March, 1965, she had been employed with the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada. Miss Corfield is now based at Vancouver with the airline. —(Ed Birmingham)

Staff Party

A beautiful day, along with a lovely background at Cordova Bay contributed to a successful buffet supper held by the Quits Nichol Auxiliary to Goodwill Enterprises for the Handicapped, in Melmorran's Pavilion, for the staff of Goodwill.

About 60 attended. Games were followed by a sing song. Mrs. J. S. MacKay convoked the supper, assisted by Mrs. George McMorran.

Anniversary Party

On the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Rush, 2189 Crescent Road, were honored recently at a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Frankling, 1600 Sonria Place. Co-hostesses were Mrs. W. Chisholm, Mrs. R. Spence, Mrs. R. Smith, Mrs. W. Puit, and Mrs. B. G. Frankling. Mr. B. G. Frankling proposed a toast and presented the couple with an bathroom set, prettily decorated in silver with a large pink bow, and filled with silver.

The guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. Davies, Mr. and Mrs. R. Pitzer, Mr. and Mrs. J. McCague, Mr. and Mrs. H. Stanley, Mr. and Mrs. G. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. G. Augustine, Mr. and Mrs. D. ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I was married last December and have just learned that we will be having a child in several months.

This evening my husband said in a matter-of-fact tone, "Of course we will save money on doctor bills because my father will see you through the pregnancy and deliver the baby." I became thoroughly unshaken by this suggestion. I told my husband I am very fond of his father and that I respect his competence as a physician but because of the intimacy of this type of relationship I could not bring myself to go to him as a patient.

My husband says I am immature and that his father will be hurt if we engage another physician. Who is right and who is wrong? You are going to decide for us. — WISCONSIN READER.

Dear Reader: The relationship between a woman and her obstetrician is a very special one. The choice should be yours, and yours alone. If your husband is a "leaner" (and I suspect he is) it would be unwise to get his father into the act for still another reason. A young man should not be haunted by the fear that he couldn't even bring a child into the world without his father's help.

Dear Ann Landers: My oldest daughter who is 12 has developed a terrible habit of lying. She makes up tall stories about herself, her friends and her family. As a rule they are not stories that would hurt anyone, but they are lies nonetheless. I've tried reasoning with her, taking away privileges and spanking her. It's like talking to a rock. I'm afraid my three younger daughters will pick up her habit of lying if something isn't done soon.

Why must a 12-year-old be the centre of attraction whenever she goes? This girl believes she must be first in all things. Please don't tell me she has had too much attention is spoiled. My children came very close together and no child received more attention or love than another. I treated them all the same.

I am at my wits ends trying to deal with this lying girl. Can you help me?—PUZZLED MOTHER.

Dear Mother: Chronic lying is a symptom of insecurity. Your daughter lies because she feels unloved and unimportant. She is trying to build herself by telling startling stories.

Your hostility toward the girl and your defensiveness about your feelings is apparent in your letter. I suggest that you get professional help. Perhaps when you learn why you feel as you do, your attitude toward her will improve and she will stop lying.

Dear Ann Landers: My brother and his wife and my sister and her husband have had a falling out. The six of us used to have a lot of fun together. We never had a party without them.

Now my sister refuses to come to our home if our brother and his wife have been invited. My brother's wife feels the same way about them.

My husband and I have tried everything to persuade these four to be friends again but we can't get to first base. My husband says to invite them all and act as if nothing happened. What do you say?—ASUNDERSVILLE.

Dear Asundersville: Since you are aware that these people don't want to be together, why try to force a situation which will make four people uncomfortable. Invite them separately.

New Officers To Be Installed

At the final business meeting for the year the Victoria Altrusa Club reports of all committees were presented. Included was the announcement that the Gold Cup, brought back by the Victoria members, from the Twelfth District Conference recently, was for the highest percentage of new members in the district, including Washington, Oregon and British Columbia.

Among the officers elected at this conference, Miss Marion Ballingbroke of the Victoria Club was delegated the office of projects chairman.

This evening, at the Cherry Bank Hotel, the Victoria Altrusa Club will hold their annual dinner and installation service for new officers.

They are: President, Mrs. Janet Mesher; vice president, Mrs. Elsie Mahon; treasurer, Mrs. Margaret Wilkinson; recording secretary, Miss Kay Goodall; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Bina Whitney.

While on vacation in July, Miss Mona Jewell will unofficially represent the Victoria Club at the Biennial International Altrusa Conference in Dallas, Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Hawkins To Live in Duncan

St. Joseph's Church, West Burnside Road, was the scene of a lovely summer wedding when Frances Maureen Diane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Carlin of Ganges became the bride of Mr. Donald Stuart Hawkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Hawkins, Calgary, Alberta.

Monseigneur M. T. O'Connell officiated at the double ring ceremony. Standard baskets of pink and white peonies decorated the church.

Given in marriage by her father the tall, dark haired bride made a charming picture in her classic floor-length gown of white peau-de-soie, with scoop neckline, lily print sleeves. The Empire waist line had a slight train attached by a small bow. Her finger tip veil of nylon illusion tulle was held in place with a coronet and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink rose buds, stephanotis and ivy.

Mrs. G. A. Philion, Duncan, sister of the bride, as brides-matron chose a floor-length gown of ice blue brocade and head dress with a bow of the same material attached to a whimsy veil. Bridesmaid Miss Cathy Akerman of Fulford, cousin of the bride, wore a floor-length gown of pink taffeta and head dress of the same material. Both attendants carried bouquets of baby pink and white gladiolus and stephanotis.

Mr. James Kocurek, Duncan, was best man, and the ushers were Mr. Walter Davis, Crofton, B.C., and Mr. Ian Wamsley, Duncan.

The reception was held at the Olde England Inn. The toast to the bride was proposed by her uncle, Mr. W. M. Harris, Sidney, B.C. The three tiered wedding cake, made and decorated by her parents, and surmounted by pink sweet heart rose buds, held the place of honor at the bride's table.

For going away the bride chose a smart pink wool suit, white flowered hat, beige accessories, and a corsage of pink rosebuds and white feathered carnations. On the return from their honeymoon, which will be spent in the Interior of B.C. and Calgary, the couple will reside in Duncan, B.C.

Guests from Salt Spring included Mr. and Mrs. Robert Akerman, Mr. and Mrs. Denis Andrews, Mr. and Mrs. George St. Denis, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Sober, Mrs. Mervyn Gardener, Mrs. Gordon Ruckle, Misses Nan and Gwen Ruckle, Vancouver guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. J. McCormack, Miss Kathleen Carlin, Mrs. V. Gummerson, Mr. and Mrs. W. Murray. Guests from Salmon Arm: Mrs. R. Carlin and daughter Jane, Miss Catherine Carroll and Mr. P. J. Carroll, Mr. G. Philion of Duncan, and Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Harris and Peter Harris, Sidney.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hiscock, 4155 Oakridge Crescent, announce the forthcoming marriage of their eldest daughter, Elva Margaret, to David McLane Murdoch of Dawson Creek. The wedding will take place on Monday, June 28, at 7 p.m. in Centennial United Church, 649 Gorge Road.

MacNeil-Jones

Quiet Wedding

Lady Chapel of Christ Church Cathedral was the setting for a quiet ceremony uniting in marriage Doris Emily Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Jones, Cordova Bay, and Mr. Vincent John MacNeil, son of Mr. Vincent MacNeill, Ocean Falls, B.C., and Mrs. Evelyn Corbett, Victoria.

For her wedding the bride chose a street-length gown of white lace. She wore a matching lace headpiece and short veil. Her only jewelry was an heirloom locket which belonged to her grandmother and she carried a bouquet of pink carnations and ivy.

Miss Beatrice Jones was her sister's only attendant. She wore a powder-blue street-length gown of peau de charme and carried a bouquet of white carnations. Mr. Harvey St. Hilaire was best man for his brother-in-law. Cpl. W. H. Jones proposed the toast to his sister at a reception which followed in the Old Island Highway home of Mr. and Mrs. St. Hilaire.

The newlyweds are now making their home in Victoria.

Cost More

MONTREAL (CP) — North American film commercials are less imaginative and more expensive than those in England, says Helen Oppenheim, Canadian representative of an English film studio. She says European producers risk more because they spend less on investigating people's reactions to commercials.

Killer from Canada Loses New Trial

NEW YORK—Toronto-born Wayne Lonergan, 47, has lost his bid for a new trial for the 1943 slaying of his mistress.

Lonergan, serving 35 years to life in prison on a second-degree murder conviction, sought to have the conviction set aside on the grounds his "confession" had been forced by police. State Supreme Court Justice Charles Marks decided Lonergan's constitutional rights were not violated.

NEW YORK—Fraternal comedy actress Mary Boland, a star of stage and silent and talking movies through the first half of this century, died at 80.

ARLINGTON, Va. — Leta Turner, Hollywood's original "sweater girl," has taken a California businessman as her sixth husband. Robert Eaton, 34, wed the 44-year-old blonde actress at his father's home. It was Eaton's first marriage.

PALO ALTO, Calif. — Miss Barbara Baines celebrated her 104th birthday with the observation she likes men but would have been dead long ago if she had ever married. A twin sister, who did marry, lived to 96.

VANCOUVER—Warner Miller, who lived in a tree stump in Stanley Park, was given a suspended sentence on condition he return to his family home in Edmonton. He twice broke into a sports pavilion to obtain food and supplies and told police he was forced to vacate his hotel room and move into the park after he was beaten up and robbed of $300.

WHITEHORSE — William Grant, retired Yukon Indian agency superintendent, was convicted in territorial court on six charges of making false returns to the federal Indian Affairs branch. Mr. Justice John Parker fined him $10 on each count or one day in jail in default of payment.

LONDON—Communist poets Pablo Neruda of Chile and Nicholas Guillen of Cuba, and novelist Shmuel Yosef Agnon of Israel are reported to be top candidates for the Nobel prize for literature this year.

ANAHEIM, Calif.—Unemployed bartender William Charles Schumacher, 27, pleaded not guilty in municipal court to charges he murdered a barmaid and carried her body in the trunk of his car for three months.

VANCOUVER—Roger Allan Follen, 34, was declared sane and fit to stand trial on a charge of capital murder in the slaying of trust company official Jan Heidebrema May 19.

SALT LAKE CITY — Not many people say "thanks a million" and back it up. William Browning, who died in 1961, did. He won the University of Utah's first mining engineering scholarship before he was graduated in 1907. The university said Wednesday he left the school more than $1,000,000.

GRAND FORKS — John Verliga, honoring chairman of 17,000 Orthodox Doukhobors in western Canada, is in satisfactory condition with multiple injuries and a collapsed lung suffered in a traffic mishap.

VANCOUVER — Donald Cramis, former publisher of the Vancouver Sun, announced he will publish a new monthly magazine known as Vancouver Life and About Town. He named as editor Delaney, former Victorian and recently resigned managing editor of the Vancouver Times.

WASHINGTON—Republican national chairman Ray Bliss fired top aide William O'Kelly, a Cincinnati lawyer, after party finance director Frank Foveas accused Kelly and three other Bliss aides of breaking into his desk. He didn't say what for.

Boland

LATHROP WELLS, Nev.—More than 30 divers gave up a two-day hunt for the bodies of divers David Mann, 30, and Paul Giancontieri, 19, lost in Devil's Hole, a "bottomless" prehistoric underwater cave.

REGINA—The risk of a diphtheria epidemic in this city following the death of two young children from the disease June 12 appears to have been eliminated, said Dr. John Chinn, city medical health officer.

LONDON—Prince Charles, 16, may enter Atlantic College, where the uniform is blue jeans and naval sweaters. It was founded by German-born Dr. Karl Hahn, who also founded Charles' present school Gordonstoun.

STOCKHOLM — Jurij Breshnev, son of Soviet Communist party chief Leonid Breshnev, has been appointed first secretary of the Soviet embassy here.

LONDON—Mrs. Sarah Burgess, who had been married to James Burgess for 12 years, died 2 1/2 weeks short of her 100th birthday. Mr. and Mrs. Burgess were believed to be Britain's longest-married couple.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla.—Swedish boatbuilder Per-Erik Reck, his wife Agnes and their two young sons completed a 33-day Atlantic crossing aboard their 27-foot motorless sailboat.

SAN FRANCISCO—The U.S. Coast Guard moved into harbor a disabled catamaran which Vancouver men Ben Henderson, Gerald Hastings and Charles Jones were trying to sail across the Pacific.

SEOUL — South Korea's President Chung Hee Park denounced critics of the new Japanese-South Korean accord as students battled police in anti-treaty demonstrations for the third consecutive day.

LONDON—Prince Charles, 16,

Beatings in Mississippi Described to Congress

WASHINGTON (A.P.)—Eyewitness reports of police brutality to demonstrators jailed in a compound at the State Fairgrounds at Jackson, Miss., were delivered to Congress Tuesday.

Two demonstrators, Maggie Gordon, Lexington, Miss., and David French, Washington, both Negroes, told a group of eight House of Representatives members of beatings.

Dr. David M. French, Washington, vice-president of the medical committee on human rights, urged federal action be taken to assure medical attention to jailed victims of the alleged brutality or at least that his group be given access to the compound.

Chief of Detectives M. E. Pierce, who directed operations at the compound, said "99 per cent of these accusations are false."

FOUR ASSAULTED—Pierce said Maggie Gordon "assaulted four police officers and put one of them in the hospital."

She was charged with assault.

Nearly 800 demonstrators were placed in the compound last week after being arrested for attempting to stage protest marches to the Mississippi capital.

They were charged with parading without a permit.

Three members of the commission on religion and race of the U.S. National Council of Churches who returned from Mississippi earlier Tuesday told of conditions in the compound which they described as a "concentration camp."

In a statement, they reported on interviews with more than 100 prisoners in the compound, listing such cases as these:

• Warren prisoners subjected to "constant lewd and suggestive" remarks and given medical examinations in the presence of "staring police officers."

• Male prisoners forced to run a gauntlet of club-wielding policemen.

• Prisoners since the first arrests a week ago with no blankets and only a single mattress for every three people.

• Medicine prescribed but not delivered.

• Fumigating sprayers used to disperse choking, eye-smothering gases.

Harmony Didn't Endure

OTTAWA (UPI)—Members of the Commons Wednesday lauded the French-English harmony and co-operation that made Canada possible, then immediately got into a hassle over the lack of French translations of a government statement.

The occasion was the eve of today's celebration of the St. Jean Baptiste day holiday. The Commons, for the first time since Confederation, closes up shop to observe the holiday.

Members from all five parties expressed the hope that the spirit of French-English co-operation that made Confederation possible would continue to make Canada a great nation.

Then Transport Minister Pickens announced an agreement with France and Quebec. Conservative frontbencher Theogene Richard was on his feet demanding to know why he didn't have a French translation.

He never received an answer.

Paper Law Criticized As Difficult to Enforce

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator M. Grattan O'Leary said Wednesday his royal commission on publications rejected the method the government has chosen to curb Canadian advertising in foreign magazines entering Canada.

Senator O'Leary, president of the Ottawa Journal and chairman of the commission that recommended measures to aid Canadian periodicals, told the Senate experts had advised the commission against the course the government has decided upon.

He was referring to Finance Minister Gordon's budget proposal to ban from Canada foreign periodicals that contain more than five per cent advertising directed at the Canadian market.

Experts advised the commission that to administer such a provision would require a great deal of administrative work and police at the border to watch all periodicals entering. The commission had agreed with the experts that it was simpler to exclude magazines that contained any advertising of this kind, the senator said.

COMMENT OFFERED
Senator O'Leary (PC—Ontario) offered to comment on Mr. Gordon's income tax proposal—still before the Commons—to impose tax penalties against newspapers and magazines failing to file foreign hands.

He had no objection to the government allowing a five-per-cent maximum, but thought he should point out why this step had been rejected by the commission.

Reds Prepare for Profits New Business Freedom Facing Delay?

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Krumlin began preparing Soviet citizens Wednesday for major reforms that are expected to give Soviet industry some of the surface trappings of western management.

The reforms, if carried out, would give businessmen sweeping new freedom, put stress on profits and give pay incentives to workers. But the Soviet system of state ownership would stop the reforms far short of the western concept of free enterprise.

Persistent reports have said the reforms will be adopted later this summer at a plenary session of the Communist party's ruling 333-man central committee.

However, indecision or even disagreement among Russian leaders on this and other basic questions was indicated by reports that a party congress, due this October, will be delayed until spring. It would give final approval to the reforms.

An article in the party's official newspaper Pravda said that the reforms would include: • Drastic curtailment of state management of industry and partial scrapping of the familiar quota system. Factory managers will be given greater freedom in running their plants.

• Profit will be the new cornerstone of Soviet industry. Managers will be expected to show a profit and will be allowed, to use at least part of it as they see fit.

• Workers will be encouraged through better wages, bonuses and even a profit-sharing plan.

• Prices will be cut and more new goods will appear on store shelves.

Pravda said the reforms would develop "operative independence and healthy economic initiative." Soviet factories previously turned out great quantities of goods to meet a large demand. But with increased prosperity, customers have become choosier and stocks of unimaginative, poorly-made goods have piled up unsold.

Nationalist China Challenged

MONTREAL (CP)—The right of the Republic of Nationalist China to a seat at the 15th assembly of the International Civil Aviation Organization was challenged Wednesday.

Eleven nations, including the United Kingdom, went on record as being in favor of seating the People's Republic of China, or the Communist regime on the mainland.

Four governments—the United States, the Formosa regime itself, Korea and South Viet Nam—recorded their support for the status quo, mainly on the basis that Nationalist China is a "duly accredited" member of the United Nations.

Take Over Production and ...

Cut Gas Rates To Consumer —Strachan

By IAN STREET
Legislative Reporter

Opposition leader Robert Strachan called on the provincial government Wednesday to reduce natural gas rates to the consumer.

This should be followed immediately, he said in a prepared statement, by government take-over of all natural gas production, transmission and distribution in the province.

The result of such a move would be possibility of still further rate reductions to the consumers who are "now being soaked" for purchase of natural gas, said Mr. Strachan.

The opposition leader accused crown-owned B.C. Hydro of selling high-priced gas to force sales of electric power "to justify and provide cash for" the Peace River development.

FINANCIAL REPORT

Secondly, he said, the consumer is being required "to pay what the traffic will bear to government friends of natural gas monopolist Frank McMahon."

Mr. Strachan said the NDP charges were based out by the latest B.C. Hydro financial report. It shows "approximate gas revenue" of $30,000,000 from domestic consumers on gas that cost $10,000,000, the opposition leader charged.

Natural gas is a monopoly public utility the same as electric power and telephones and should be under public ownership, he said.

Smith and Pearson in London

No Criminal He

Laughing on Inside —Pearson Outside

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson, with tongue in cheek, says he tried to join the "inner group" of the Commonwealth by claiming he once served a prison term—but he didn't get away with it.

The Commonwealth membership is getting so big, he told correspondents Wednesday, not all of the members can gather around the fireplace. The inside group seemed to consist of those Commonwealth leaders who had served time in Her Majesty's prisons.

Pearson said he never served time in jail but during the First World War he was with the British Army and, being a Canadian, didn't pay much attention to the regulations.

As a result, he drew 30 days' field punishment. He tried to use this in claiming membership in the Commonwealth "inside" club.

"They didn't think it was enough," he added.

In a more serious vein, Pearson predicted the Commonwealth membership, now 21, would rise to 25 or 28 in two to three years.

Port Alberni Victorian Taken To Hospital

PORT ALBERNI—A Victorian man was flown from Port Alberni to hospital in Vancouver Wednesday for possible brain surgery.

George Ryles, 28, whose mother lives at 3085 Albany Street, Victoria, had been admitted to West Coast General Hospital. He became a commercial fisherman June 14.

Hospital authorities were unable to say whether he had been injured in a fall on the boat or suffered a brain ailment.

Skateboards on City Streets Gaining in Skill — or in Care

Are Victorians learning to use their skateboards, or are they just getting more wary?

After an initial spate of skinned knees, bumped heads and twisted ankles, Victoria hospitals report a recent slump in skateboard injuries.

"During the last couple of weeks," said a nurse at St. Joseph's, "I don't think we've had a single case." The Royal Jubilee Hospital emergency ward confirmed this observation, and added a silent prayer that the trend would continue.

NEPT HOPIING

For when the skateboards first made their appearance on Victoria streets near the start of spring, nurses were kept hopping at the two city hospitals.

"We got about four a week, on the average," said a Jubilee nurse, "but sometimes it was worse than that."

"Cuts, fractures, we got them all."

"She said there were a number of fractures from skateboard accidents, but no head injuries that she could recall."

The latest top-25 list is out and Victoria is near the bottom. "She ranks 21st among Canadian cities in average income among personal income taxpayers."

Rogerson Funeral Held Here

Funeral services were held here Tuesday for Howard Osborne Rogerson of West Coast Road, who died in his home Saturday.

Mr. Rogerson's Highland Farm near Gordon Beach has been a drawing card for motorists and photographers.

He arrived in Victoria nearly four years ago to take over the farm, bringing a herd of shaggy Highland cattle and a large flock of Highland sheep.

Mr. Rogerson was born in Shropshire, England. He was a retired construction engineer and is survived by the widow, Josephine, at home.

Income of all taxpayers in 65 cities averaged $4,690, a statistical analysis of 1963 income tax returns showed.

Analysis was done by the revenue department.

Highest B.C. city on the chart was Nanaimo which ranked seventh with an average of $4,885.

Alberni ranked eighth with $4,871, while Vancouver reached the 11th spot with $4,611.

Other B.C. cities were New Westminster, 19th, with $4,673; Victoria, 21st, $4,600; and Prince George, 24th, $4,559.

McPherson Playhouse closed its door Wednesday until July 2 when the first program will be a noon-hour concert.

During the week, workers will punch an underpassway through the east wall of the main building into the screen left which has been built as an adjunct to the east side of the building.

Inasmuch as the drive through the solid brick wall will be dusty and extremely noisy, it was felt advisable to close the theatre.

Victoria militiamen will leave soon for summer camp training in two provinces.

An estimated 175 men of the Canadian Scottish Regiment of Victoria and 45 more from 155 Coy. RCASC will attend week-long exercises at Vernon, while 70 soldiers of the 5th (B.C. Field Battery) will engage in artillery range firing practice at Camp Wainwright, Alta.

The Vernon-bound units will include 12 members of the CWAC who will carry out clerical and driving duties with the service corps.

Buses will leave Bay Street Armories for Vernon this Sunday.

The artillerymen will leave the armories July 3 for Vancouver where two charter planes will take them to the central Alberta army camp.

Only available openings left in the Kinetite swimming classes for Victoria youngsters wanting to learn to swim are in the classes scheduled from July 19 to 21.

The classes to be held from July 5 to 17 have been filled, according to Mrs. Lee Barkley, 509 Davida, and applicants for the remaining sessions are to register with her at EV 8-5309.

Classes are to be held in the Kinsmen Gorge Park pool, where the water is tested twice weekly by Esquimalt health authorities for any signs of pollution.

Registration fee is $2.

MP to Speak

Nanaimo MP Colin Cameron will be guest speaker at the New Democratic Party's annual barbecue picnic at the Sea Bluff Farm in Metchem July 4.

Works Minister Chant is hopeful the proposed retarded children's hospital will still be built near Oakridge jail.

"I trust we're going to find a happy solution" to the sewage problem, the minister said Wednesday.

His department has applied to the Pollution Control Board for permission to dump about 80,000 gallons of treated sewage into the Gorge each day.

But in the wake of a public outcry against the proposal, Mr. Chant indicated the government is prepared to relocate the hospital.

Now, however, he gives the impression the hospital will stay at Oakridge.

Officials of both Saanich and his department have been working together on solving the sewage problem.

"We hope to find a satisfactory solution," he added.

Meanwhile, Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis said after a closed council meeting which discussed the sewage problem that no statement would be issued.

Coronation Sunday

Coronation of Miss Sidney will take place at 8 p.m. Saturday in Saanich Hall.

New queen is Dianne Wilson and princesses are Jill Cowan and Beverly Williams. A coronation ball will follow the event.

North Subdivision Scored by Curtis

Approval of a North Saanich subdivision by Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell is a regrettable decision, Saanich Reeve Hugh Curtis said Wednesday.

He joins a growing list of critics who oppose the costly proposal near John Dean Park.

The reeve pointed out it has been generally agreed area development "should be progressive and not spotty."

He noted that in previous years Saanich was a case in point of what could happen if developers were allowed to locate where they wished "without regard to logical planning practices."

The minister's decision, Mr. Curtis added, "points up the need for local control of development."

Esquimalt Seaman Jailed Four Years

YOKOHAMA (UPI)—An Esquimalt-based sailor was sentenced Wednesday to four years in a Japanese prison for his part in an April 10 attack on a Yokohama taxi driver.

He is L. J. Kocavar, 23, a leading seaman aboard the destroyer escort HMCS Saskatchewan which was on a goodwill visit to Japan.

Two other Canadian seamen, both 20, were acquitted by the Yokohama District Court because they are under-age.

WITH STEEL PIPE

The incident involved slugging the taxi driver on the head with a steel pipe when he tried to stop the sailors from leaving without paying a 230-yen (about 70 cents) cab fare.

Under Japanese law, an attempt to evade payment of a taxi bill is considered to be robbery.

An effort is being made through the Canadian embassy to arrange to have the seaman serve the term in a North American-style prison.

Garden Notes

Algae Domesticated

By M. V. CHESNUT

Almost every garden feature has its own particular problem, but off-hand I can't think of any which is more vexing than the settling-in process associated with a new pool or water garden.

Building a pool is a laborious task and, after months of toil and sweat and hard construction work, it is natural to expect that the worst of the headaches are over. I'd venture to say, however, that at least 50 per cent of newly-planted pools become so clouded and discolored within a month of planting that you can't see either plants nor fish.

There is always a reason for such failures and, in the case of green water, the gardener himself is usually responsible, for this is a clear case of mismanagement.

When the water turns green, it is because myriads of tiny single-celled plants (algae) have taken up residence in the pool. The water can become infected with algae in a hundred different ways—the minute spores can be carried to the pool by insects or animals or on plants or tools or on the gardener's boots or finger. Or they may drift in on a current of air. Algae feed upon the dissolved mineral salts in the water, and they need quite a bit of light in order to thrive and multiply. It follows, then, that the richer the compost in the bottom of the pool and the more sun it receives, the happier the algae become.

The most common cause of green scum is the compost, and the only really safe thing to use in the bottom of the pool is pure, heavy loam soil, almost clay, and with its organic matter so well rotted that hardly a trace of fibre can be detected in it. Water lilies may have a little decayed cow manure added, but all the other aquatic plants must be satisfied with the loam alone.

Never use horse manure in the compost for a water garden, for the straw in it, as it decomposes, releases organic gases which foul the water. Leafmould, peat moss and lawn mowings all feed and encourage algae and the only safe rule is — no fresh organic matter at all.

Too much sun will always bring about a green water condition, so the pool should be located in a shaded spot. If you are going to stock it with fish, keep it well away from laburnum trees, for the falling leaves are toxic to fish.

If your pool must be in the sun, the trick is to plant tall-growing aquatic plants on the sunny side to reduce the amount of direct sunshine falling on the water. Waterlily pads and floating aquatics also can be used to provide some shade.

In all newly-planted pools, there is bound to be an imbalance for a time. The water is raw and probably sterile, and the new plants are not growing strongly enough at first to use up the available supply of food, leaving too much for the encouragement of algae.

Later, as your plants get going and the water mellows, conditions should right themselves—always providing the compost is not too rich—and the algae will be starved out. Don't try to get rid of algae by changing the water, for this only makes matters worse.

Scavenger snails are most useful in all pools, since they feed upon plant and animal debris and reduce the surplus organic matter which makes for green water. Snails rasp off long threads of algae with their sawlike tongues.

There are various chemical methods for clearing green water but I haven't too much faith in them. They don't get at the primary cause of the trouble and they only upset even further the natural balance so necessary for a successful water garden.

ART BUCHWALD Meets Wall Street's Little Guy

Irving Starts Panic

NEW YORK—Whenever the stock market takes a big dip, Wall Street tends to blame the "little fellow"—the guy who panics at the first sign of bad news.

But nobody has ever bothered to talk to the little fellow until last week when I caught up with him. His name was Irving and he was nervously reading the paper.

"Why does it always have to be us?" he said.

"What do you mean?" I asked him.

"Every time the market goes down they say the little investor got scared. Don't big investors ever get scared?"

"Probably," I replied. "But they would never admit it."

"What do you make of Humphrey being sent to Paris?"

"I hadn't thought about it. Why do you ask?"

"Well, Johnson wouldn't send him to London for Churchill's funeral, but he sent him to Paris for the air show. You know what I think? The British pound is in trouble."

"It's possible."

"I have a good mind to sell my Xerox."

"Do you think you ought to? After all, Humphrey went over to escort the astronauts McDuff and White. It may have had nothing to do with the British pound."

"Maybe you're right," Irving said. "I'll sell my AT & T instead."

"What for?"

"I hear the Early Bird satellite is acting up."

"I hadn't heard that," I said.

"It's all over town. Besides, McChesney Martin says we're ripe for another crash like we had in 1929. I think I ought to unload my General Motors."

"He didn't say that, exactly. Besides President Johnson says the economy has never been healthier."

"He did, huh? Maybe I'll buy some Chrysler."

"And don't forget the cut in excise taxes is going to help the economy."

"Yeah, but the longshoremen may go out on strike. I'd hate to keep my U.S. Lines, if that happened."

"Irving," I said, "you got to play it cool. Why don't you stop worrying so much?"

"Who's worried? You think just because I read a lousy story in the newspaper I go off half cocked?"

"You're lighting the filter end of your cigarette?"

"Thanks. What do you hear about Santo Domingo?"

"It's going very well. I just came from Washington and everyone is optimistic," I said.

"That's not what I hear. I was told to sell my United Fruit."

"By whom?"

"Marvin. He lives next to me."

"Are you going to believe Marvin or Dean Rusk?" I said.

"Marvin was right about the Edsel."

"How did he know?"

"He bought one."

"What does Marvin know about Texas Sulphur?" I asked excitedly.

Irving held his thumb down.

I casually excused myself from the table and then ran for a phone. When I finally got through to my broker, I shouted, "Don't ask questions. Sell my Texas Sulphur."

My broker said excitedly, "What do you know?"

"If I told you, it would only start a panic."

Size Idolized

By DR. STUART ROSENBERG

Size! That's the name of the god of our century whose image is worshipped on all sides. Our age believes in the true worth of extrinsics, for we live by a new mythology: "Bigness equals greatness."

That there is a wide difference between quantity and quality, appearance and essence, apparently has not yet penetrated the deepest parts of our mentality.

The big lie is the believable lie.

The big noise is the sound that is heard.

The big talk is the fashionable talk.

In terms of international life, the worship of bigness has led to a new and even fearful condition: the big, powerful nations, calling the tune for the little "underdeveloped" countries.

There was a time when England, France or Italy might be listened to, in the councils of the world chambers—but they are not big enough, any longer. Only the giants can really speak and be heard.

Yet, there are signs that the big nations may trip over themselves—their overbearing strength may indeed be their undoing. Like some modern dinosaur, their sheer size often seems to lead to self-defeat.

For there are yet little peoples, small nations, so-called underdeveloped countries, now beginning to pop up, as if from under the earth's surface, little flowers straining for their place in the sun. Their day will yet come.

While seeming "eight-foot tall" in the eyes of other people may make him something of a conversation piece, even a "celebrity"—attracting attention does not necessarily earn him affection. It's not too cozy holding hands with a giant. Always, there is the unspoken fright of being crushed to death, even in the middle of a warm embrace.

To bigness, then, there must be added benevolence, and to benevolence, understanding. If the giant is to survive, he needs more than brute strength or sheer size.

Nor will cheap talk, no matter how loudly proclaimed, how largely heaped, ever contribute to real happiness. Big talk, if motivated by vulgar ambition, remains small talk, nevertheless.

There is no effective escape, everywhere in the world, from the power of the still, small voice — of conscience and of character. Bigness may impress — but it is a first impression which does not last.

It's the lasting impression that counts. And for such an achievement, size must be matched by content, quantity by quality, appearance by essence.

'Our Shir!' Hobnobs With High Society

By SHEILAH GRAHAM, from London

Shirley MacLaine not only attended the garden party of Earl Mountbatten's son-in-law Lord Brabourne, but she has also been a weekend guest at Broadlands, Lord Louis' beautiful home in the country. There are large house parties every weekend, and our Shir! is having the time of her life.

Star row dressing room at the Pinewood Studios—magical names on consecutive doors: Gregory Peck, Sophia Loren, Sean Connery. Pinewood, owned by the Rank organization, has the best of everything in the way of sound stages, food and flowers. When Marilyn Monroe was making her picture with Laurence Olivier here, she jumped up and down and said excitedly, "Oh, the grass is so much greener here." That's because it rains so much. It's even greener in Ireland because it rains even more there. But when the sun appears, everything feels so soft and warm you forget that tomorrow, or even later today, it will rain.

Molester Movie Scene Deleted

The Molesters has been released for public showing by B.C. film censor R. W. McDonald and will start here today at the Atlas.

Mr. McDonald took a second look at the film after an outcry by PTA representatives at a preview last week. His first look was last year, when he released the film for showing to adults only.

The adults only classification does not mean the film can only be seen by 18-year-olds and over, Atlas manager John Kroeger said Wednesday.

"The classification is only for reference by parents. The Atlas is restricting the film to 16-year-olds and over. Those under 16 can get in only if they are accompanied by a responsible adult."

Canadian Film Worth It

By IAN STREET

Nobody Waved Goodbye, the current attraction at Fox Cinema, is a good film worth seeing — and Canadian-made, too.

Its approach to the problems facing contemporary youth is fresh and generally unstuffy, though I found on occasion in the plot a skeleton stuck out for all to see.

DOCUMENTARY STYLE

Still, a fine first feature for Toronto's Don Owens, from whom we hope more will be seen in the future.

It starts off like an NFB documentary — which it was originally intended to be — but the use of actual Toronto locations, extemporaneous dialogue and often photography by natural light, I think, helps the film more than it hurts.

Peter Kastner, as the Etobicoke car salesman's son who rebels by flirting with crime and teen-age marriage, lays on the charm a bit too thick for my liking. But there's no doubt he's talented.

I preferred the gawky ugly-duckling appeal of Julie Higgins as the girl friend and enjoyed the excellent performance of Charmion King in the role of frustrated suburban mother.

Nobody Waved Goodbye is an honest attempt to portray the real (and imagined) torments of young people rebelling against the affluent society which unfolds them.

Wheat Surplus Half a Billion

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada will likely have a wheat carryover of around 500,000,000 bushels at the end of the current crop year July 31, more than enough to meet domestic and export commitments, officials say here.

It would be the biggest closing supply on hand since the 1961-62 year ended with stocks of 677,841,000 bushels.

U.S. Touch Imported By Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Embroidering machines will have to be imported from the U.S. to handle printing of the new plastic social insurance cards which substitute the maple leaf for Canada's coat of arms, Labor Minister MacEachern said Wednesday.

He said the machines, not available in this country, will be rented from U.S. sources at a cost of $12,000 a month for the first six months and $8,475 a month for a further six months.

Cradle-to-Grave Doctors Call Off Walkout Threat

LONDON (UPI)—The immediate danger of a mass walkout from Britain's medical profession was averted Wednesday when representatives of the country's 23,000 family doctors voted not to hand in their resignations on July 1. But the threat of a future pull-out remained.

The question before the 430 representatives was what to do with the 12,000 undated resignations from the National Health Service sent in by family doctors to the British Medical Association.

The BMA had asked for the resignations to use if the government failed to meet their demands for improved pay and conditions, listed in their "doctor's charter."

After three hours of heated argument at BMA headquarters, the doctors' representatives voted 281 to 146 against handing in the resignations July 1 as scheduled. There were 12 abstentions.

But the meeting then voted that the resignations should not be destroyed until a final settlement was reached between the government and the profession. The meeting also expressed "dissatisfaction" at the government's assurances to them.

The doctors' decision came after a government offer of four major concessions: a $28,000,000 loan project to help doctors obtain or improve surgeries and equipment; less paperwork; financial assistance for employing staff like receptionists; and a new method of salary payment.

But Health Minister Robinson had warned that nothing could be done while the doctors were still threatening to quit the cradle-to-grave service.

Car Sales Soar

OTTAWA (CP)—Sales of Canadian and foreign-made new passenger and commercial motor vehicles rose 16.9 per cent in volume and 12.9 per cent in retail value in April this year above sales in April, 1964, the bureau of statistics says.

Car Insurance Changes

Salesmen Also Unhappy

Car insurance salesmen will be just as sad as the driving public when B.C. insurance rates jump on average of eight per cent July 1.

The increase stems from a simultaneous cut in their commissions from 15 per cent to 12 1/2 per cent.

OTHERS TO FOLLOW
The move to cut commissions was announced by the Canadian Underwriters' Association, representing a heavy percentage of the companies operating in B.C.

Other firms are expected to follow with similar cuts soon.

In Vancouver, Cyril Shelford,

Social Credit MLA for Omineca, accused car insurance companies Wednesday of being in contempt of the B.C. legislature.

Mr. Shelford said he was shocked to read insurance companies announced rate increases effective July 1 before a government investigation is completed.

To Be Specific, B.C. Owns Pacific

Phil Boils Over Oil

VANCOUVER (CP) — Highway Minister P. A. Gagliardi said Wednesday British Columbia owns "everything off the B.C. coast, and I don't care how far out you go."

In a fast-falling speech to the Asphalt Institute, he said the federal government adds "insult to injury" by trying "to steal our resources as well."

He told the meeting—which included representatives from major oil companies—"Shell Oil Company went to Ottawa as well as to us to get offshore rights to drill for oil."

Mr. Gagliardi said the question of offshore mineral rights ownership goes to the Supreme Court of Canada soon, and "we don't care about precedents. We'll set the precedents."

Mr. Gagliardi, who said he keeps the asphalt industry in business, told delegates in the meeting they should get busy with more research.

He said the province has already poured so much asphalt that "you people will never go out of business" because of the maintenance needed.

But "the concrete people are beating a path to my door, and coming up with some competitive prices."

Cost of building concrete highways is 25 per cent higher than asphalt, he said, but asphalt costs $1,000 per year per mile to maintain.

'Offshore' Provinces

Eight Fight Against Case

QUEBEC (CP) — Eight provinces have agreed to insist at the July 19 federal-provincial conference that Ottawa withdraw a Supreme Court of Canada case dealing with offshore underwater exploration rights off the British Columbia coast. Premier Jean Lesage told the Quebec legislature Wednesday.

Prince George

No Relief In Fire Situation

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Clouds brought gusting winds, small lightning storms, scattered showers and little relief for more than 180 men fighting two major week-old forest fires Wednesday in the large Prince George fire district.

A Forest Service spokesman said moist Pacific air forecast Tuesday to blanket the province pushed only as far as the Kamloops fire district, 200 miles south of here.

Two Canis water bombers flew missions Wednesday morning to dampen outbreaks beyond the perimeter of a 3,500-acre burning 30 miles southeast of here.

The spokesman said the 80 men and six bulldozers there have regained firm control of the blaze after 40 m.p.h. winds threatened to spread it beyond the fireguards.

He was replying to questions asking what means the Quebec government intends to follow to obtain underwater exploration rights in the St. Lawrence River and Gulf of St. Lawrence.

STRONG OPPOSITION

Premier Lesage expressed strong opposition in the legislature Tuesday to the granting of a federal underwater gas and petroleum exploration permit covering 8,500,000 acres of the Gulf of St. Lawrence to Pan American Petroleum Corp. of Calgary.

"It is remarkable," Mr. Lesage told the legislature Wednesday, "that the federal permit was accorded in the absence of Prime Minister Pearson, who is attending the Commonwealth conference in London."

SAME INTERESTS

"You can imagine what words I will use at the federal-provincial conference when I am surrounded by premiers who have the same interests in the subject as I have and whose provinces have the same interests as Quebec," he gave no details of the Supreme Court case.

Offshore underwater exploration rights is a political question and not a legal question, he said.

"Natural resources, be they under the ground or under the water, should be considered as provincial property," he said.

Ticket draws burs for Winnifred Fitton from husband John

Luck o' the Irish?

"I'm from Ireland," Winnifred Fitton said Wednesday night, "so maybe..."

Mrs. Fitton, 1258 Yates, was breathless from the news that she had drawn an Irish Sweepstakes ticket on the Saturday running of the Irish sweeps derby in Dublin.

She was one of nine on Vancouver Island, and one of 196 in Canada, with a chance at the big prize of about $150,000, $80,000 and $30,000.

MOET IN CITY

All but two of the nine are Greater Victoria residents and all but one of the seven lucky ticket-holders in this area have city addresses.

Mrs. Fitton was the only one identified. The others, with ticket number, non-declined and home in that order: Victoria—ABT 22186, Cookie on Ballistic; AMN 70634, Hopeful on Sea Strong; BSP 72616, Silver Standard on Reliance II; ACB 16294, Yeah on Dux Bonus; BFR 70071, Rajan on Nearside.

Island ticket — AEB 12804, Eyes on Western Wind; Nanaimo—EPA 12148, LITS on Wedding Present; Ladysmith—AKR 55792, Knobby on Wedding Present.

Mrs. Fitton's ticket, BZN 71984, was drawn on His Brother and bore her name.

"Two bought tickets all my life," she said, "and you know how it is, you always say, 'One of these days'... May be this is it."

FROM FRIEND

Mrs. Fitton, who said she got her ticket "from a friend," works as a practical nurse in the emergency department at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Her husband works in the drug and cosmetics department at the Woolco department store.

All ticket-holders will receive at least $1,100 each if their horses run out of the money. No Islanders drew the favored Meadow Court, owned by Calgary publisher Max Bell.

The draw is usually held over two days but this time was completed in one.

Kremlin Offers Bridge to Hanoi

QUIET HELP BEHIND 'NYET'

By K. C. THALER

LONDON (UPI) — Informed British sources say the Kremlin has offered to urge the North Vietnamese regime to receive the Commonwealth peace mission in Hanoi, if China bars it from Peking.

The disclosure came after Moscow announced it would not receive the four-man mission because it felt the Vietnamese must settle the problem themselves.

NO MENTION

The Soviet refusal was reported by the official news agency Tass. Tass made no mention of the reported Soviet offer to intercede with Hanoi which has been receiving military and other aid from the Russians.

But the sources said a lengthy and "conditional" note received from the Soviet government Wednesday made three points:

● Desire of the Soviet government to disassociate itself from the Vietnamese conflict.

● The disassociation of the Russians from the Chinese in the conflict.

● That if Peking refused to receive the mission, such refusal would put the Soviet government in a position to influence Hanoi to receive the four peace-seekers.

STILL AJAR

In view of the third point, the sources said the Soviet note was not regarded as "completely closing the door."

Commonwealth sources said that for this reason it was felt the mission's task was still "by

Rusk

Red Goal:

'Victory, Not Peace'

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Dean Rusk warned Wednesday casualties will mount in the "brutal war" in Viet Nam. He said the Communists are pushing for "a military victory," not peace.

"The other side is obviously not ready for peace," Rusk said in recounting unsuccessful peace talk attempts.

Rusk reported that in "a brutal war—marked by terror and mass attack, and by the killing of women and children in the night"—the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas have killed some 2,300 South Vietnamese civilians.

Since the onset of the Viet Cong monsoon season offensive he said, "setbacks have occurred and serious defeats have been avoided only by the combination of continuing South Vietnamese bravery and effective air and other support."

We 'Recognize' China—Pearson

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson says the fact Canada sells wheat to China is "a form of recognition" of that country.

Pearson made that point Wednesday when asked whether a country that does not recognize China should ever become a member of the Commonwealth peace mission seeking to consult with China and other countries to end the war in South Viet Nam.

"IN A SENSE"

If China takes that position, Pearson said, then it will become an important consideration that will have to be taken into account.

While he, as prime minister, does not expect to be asked to become a member of the mission, he maintained "in a sense" Canada does recognize China, even though it has not granted China diplomatic recognition.

"We sell them a great deal of wheat," he said at a Commonwealth correspondents luncheon. "That is a form of recognition. I'm not always sure they recognize us."

Pearson found himself besieged by questions whether he would be willing to replace Prime Minister Wilson as head of the four-power mission.

"That is a very hypothetical question," he replied. "I think it is a great mistake to talk about a change in the membership of the mission at this stage... I don't think it is very helpful to talk about changes of the mission membership."

He had not been asked and did not expect to be asked to join the mission. All questions on whether he had been asked to lead the mission were "hypothetical."

LOTS TO DO

"I've got lots to do in Canada these days."

As for Communist objections that Wilson is too much a supporter of the U.S. in Viet Nam to be mission chairman, Pearson said he doesn't think this is a valid objection.

The mission had to have representations of all shades of opinion. As long as there was a balance he could see no reason for argument.

CHANGED MINDS

And as for the doors the Communists have slammed against the mission, well, they had done so in the past—at the time of the Korean War—only to change their minds.

The Chinese at that time had proved very difficult. They would not talk of a ceasefire. But two or three months later they had changed their minds.

'Reds Would Balk At Vote Today'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator J. W. Fulbright said Wednesday he believes the Communists would balk at any new proposal to unite North and South Viet Nam through a supervised election.

Critics have said the United States encouraged the regime of the late Ngo Dinh Diem to ignore this provision for fear that the Communists would win in such a test.

Fulbright said he thinks the United States should disregard such fears if negotiations over Viet Nam ever materialize.

The Communists always shy away from elections and avoid them if they can."

Fortune from Faulty Phone

Firm Ordered to Pay $1,500,000 to Its Critic

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An attorney who complained about phone service has won a whopping $1,500,000 damage judgment.

All Arthur Garrett wanted back in 1957 was to move his phone from his old office to his new office, six storeys higher in the same building.

"From then on," he says, "it was interruptions and more interruptions."

A jury Tuesday awarded him $1 in actual damages and

$1,500,000 in punitive damages from Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co.

The firm says it is studying the case to decide whether to appeal.

Garrett, 63, who served as his own attorney, quipped after the verdict: "Well, you win some, you lose some."

Highlights of his testimony: Disputes over what he considered overcharges and service interruptions caused him to run, unsuccessfully, for city attorney in 1961.

Service, after he announced plans to campaign on improve-faulty-phone-service platform, got worse.

At one point, he said, he was told by a woman who identified herself as a company supervisor: "Your telephone is out of order and its going to stay that way. We have our instructions concerning you."

Company witnesses conceded service interruptions, but said financial adjustments were made.

A jury of six men and six women voted 10-2 for the award after seven hours of deliberation.

What are his plans for the award?

"I haven't had time to give it a thought," Garrett said. "Since the news got out the phone's been ringing off the hook."

Parliamentary Blessing Assured

Swastikas Blooming For Royal Nuptials

THE HAGUE (UPI) — Vandals painted orange swastikas on walls in The Hague Wednesday and smeared slogans in Amsterdam and Rotterdam saying "Out with Claus" in reference to Claus von Amsberg, the former Nazi officer who plans to marry Crown Princess Beatrix.

But Dutch Premier Joseph M. L. T. Cals said the expected marriage of the princess, 27, and the German commoner, 38, now a West German diplomat, would get the blessing of Parliament.

One high official said the cabinet also has agreed to back Beatrix' choice "because no other way is open to us except public rejection of von Amsberg."

Informed sources said the engagement is expected to be announced by Queen Juliana, Beatrix' mother, on June 28 and the wedding is planned late in the fall.

They said the queen intends to elevate von Amsberg, to "Prince of the Netherlands" after the marriage. He would be the first commoner in Dutch history to get this title.

Dr. Cals predicted parliamentary consent after two days of consultation with party leaders in both houses. The consultations were held to determine if a bill of approval for the marriage could receive the necessary unanimous or near-unanimous support needed to guarantee the princess retention of her rights to the throne.

It was indicated that few members of parliament, with the exception of some from the Socialist and Communist parties, would oppose the bill.

Some public opposition to the marriage has been reflected in the press and also in the distribution of pamphlets with anti-German slogans. Many Dutch are still bitter over memories of the German occupation.

A number of newspapers have questioned whether it would be proper for a former Wehrmacht soldier and member of the Nazi youth movement to marry the princess.

Municipal Affairs Minister

Regional District Hinted For Nanaimo in Year

NANAIMO—There is a possibility of Nanaimo and an area extending from Qualicum to Ladysmith becoming a regional district within a year, Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell said here, Wednesday night.

Mr. Campbell was interviewed after he spoke to a Social Credit Constituency Association meeting.

UNITE AREAS
He said a regional district was not a replacement for amalgamation but it would unite many communities and yet each area could keep its identity.

A functional board would control certain services for the area such as planning, water, sewerage and hospitals.

DIFFERENT AREAS
The regional district could include Cedar, South Wellington, Chase River, Extension, Nanaimo, Harewood, East Wellington, Northfield, Deepwater Bay, Wellington, Langville, Nanose Bay and Parkville.

At the Social meeting, he said British Columbia was moving towards what it should be because of its natural resources.

Campbell

"Participation of people in the development of their own communities is quite unique," he said.

president of the woman's auxiliary.

Dr. Heinz Killian of Duncan is conductor of the orchestra.

Levings Rites Set Thursday

MILL BAY—Stephen Herbert Levings, 88, a resident of the area for 45 years, died at the Centennial Home, North Surrey, June 21, it has been learned here. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p.m. Thursday from Hirst Funeral Chapel, Duncan, with Rev. P. G. Harris officiating. Burial will be in the family plot at St. John's Anglican Church, Cobble Hill.

For Skilled Workers

More Training Facilities Needed

QUALICUM BEACH—The current period of rapid industrial development has increased the need for skilled labor and expanded training facilities throughout the province, Education Minister Peterson told the Qualicum Beach Chamber of Commerce.

The higher the level of education the less chance there is of being unemployed, Mr. Peterson told Chamber members and representatives from Nanaimo, Port Alberni and Parksville Chambers and members of District 60 school board.

MANUFACTURING
He also pointed out the great increase in manufacturing in British Columbia, another reason for needing skilled workers.

He said in future the University of British Columbia would be paying more attention to post-graduate work. He said Simon Fraser University, currently being built, should be ready to receive 3,000 students in September.

VOCATIONAL SCHOOLS
Training facilities already helping to fill the need for skilled workers are the $7,000,000 Institute of Technology in Burnaby and vocational training schools.

The next step is the establishment of regional colleges, Mr. Peterson said.

NEW TO CANADA
He said the regional colleges are not only new to B.C. but new to Canada. They offer two years of senior education after which the student can transfer to one of the universities.

Several regional colleges have already been authorized and this will tend to give the British Columbia student the greatest variety of training programs in Canada, Mr. Peterson said.

Chamber Told

Villages Need Planners' Aid

LAKE COWICHAN—Municipal planners would be better off if they followed the advice of municipal planners from the start of the development of a populated area, the Cowichan Lake and District Chamber of Commerce was told Tuesday night.

Speaking to the Chamber was Christopher Dowling, of Victoria, branch manager of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

NO MATTER SIZE
Planning was important to an area whether it was a village, municipality or a city, Mr. Dowling said.

He said Lake Cowichan, as most places, had developed around its downtown area followed by the development of subdivisions as the population increased and the need arose.

NO SET RULES
"A municipal planner must be familiar with the best done in the past and apply this to all practical problems with which he is faced. There are no set rules or formulae for planning an area."

About two thirds of today's municipal planners have university education, Mr. Dowling said.

OVERALL PLAN
He said a planner must take into consideration the overall master or regional plan for each municipality not just each subdivision or other individual development.

Mr. Dowling's talk was the third in a series sponsored by

To Be Specific, B.C. Owns Pacific

Phil Boils Over Oil

VANCOUVER (CP)—Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi said Wednesday British Columbia owns "everything off the B.C. coast, and I don't care how far out you go."

In a fast-falling speech to the House of Commons, he said "to be specific, B.C. owns the oil rights to the coast."

included representatives from major oil companies—"Shell Oil Company went to Ottawa as well as to us to get offshore rights to drill for oil."

"I say shame on you, and I say you're going to pay those oil royalties to us."

Mr. Gagliardi said the question of offshore mineral rights ownership goes to the Supreme Court of Canada now, and "we don't care about precedents. We'll set the precedents."

Mr. Gagliardi, who said he keeps the asphalt industry in business, told delegates to the meeting they should get busy with more research.

He said the province has already poured so much asphalt that "you people will never go out of business," because of the maintenance needed.

But "the concrete people are beating a path to my door, and coming up with some competitive prices."

Cost of building concrete highways is 25 per cent higher than asphalt, he said, but asphalt costs $1,000 per year per mile to maintain.

'Offshore' Provinces

Eight Fight Against Case

QUEBEC (CP)—Eight provinces have agreed to insist at the July 19 federal-provincial conference that Ottawa withdraw a Supreme Court of Canada case dealing with offshore underwater exploration rights off the British Columbia coast. Premier Jean Lesage told the Quebec legislature Wednesday.

He was replying to questions asking what means the Quebec government intends to follow to obtain underwater exploration rights in the St. Lawrence River and Gulf of St. Lawrence.

STRONG OPPOSITION
Premier Lesage expressed strong opposition in the legislature Tuesday to the granting of a federal underwater gas and petroleum exploration permit covering 3,500,000 acres of the Gulf of St. Lawrence to Pan American Petroleum Corp. of Calgary.

"It is remarkable," Mr. Lesage told the legislature Wednesday, "that the federal permit was accorded in the absence of Prime Minister Pearson," who is attending the Commonwealth conference in London.

SAME INTERESTS
"You can imagine what words I will use at the federal-provincial conference when I am surrounded by premiers who have the same interests in the subject as I have and whose provinces have the same interests as Quebec," he gave no details of the Supreme Court case.

Offshore underwater exploration rights is a political question and not a legal question, he said.

"Natural resources, be they under the ground or under the water, should be considered as provincial property," he said.

Ticket draws bass for Winnifred Fitton from husband John

Luck o' the Irish?

"I'm from Ireland," Winnifred Fitton said Wednesday night, "so maybe..."

Mrs. Fitton, 1258 Yates, was breathless from the news that she had drawn an Irish Sweepstakes ticket on the Saturday running of the Irish sweepstakes in Dublin.

She was one of nine on Vancouver Island, and one of 196 in Canada, with a chance at the big prize of about $150,000, $60,000 and $30,000.

MOST IN CITY

All but two of the nine are Greater Victoria residents and all but one of the seven lucky ticket-holders in this area have city addresses.

Mrs. Fitton was the only one identified. The others, with ticket number, non deplume and name in that order: Victoria—AET 22198, Cockle on Esplanade; AMN 70564, Hopfield on Bee Street; BSP 72615, Silver Standard on Rialto II; ACB 14294, Teah on Dux Bonus; BPR 70071, Rajan on Neardale.

Sanitation—AEB 12804, Tyee on Western Wind; Nalmo-BPA 12148, LTS on Wedding Present; Ladysmith—AKR 55782, Knobby on Wedding Present.

Mrs. Fitton's ticket, BZN 71584, was drawn on His Brother and bore her name.

"I've bought tickets all my life," she said, "and you know how it is, you always say, 'One of these days'.... Maybe this is it."

'FROM FRIEND'

Mrs. Fitton, who said she got her ticket "from a friend," works as a practical nurse in the emergency department at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Her husband works in the drug and cosmetics department at the Woolco department store.

All ticket-holders will receive at least $1,100 each if their horses run out of the money. No Islanders drew the favored Meadow Court, owned by Calgary publisher Max Bell.

The draw is usually held over two days but this time was completed in one.

We 'Recognize' China—Pearson

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson says the fact Canada sells wheat to China is "a form of recognition" of that country.

Pearson made that point Wednesday when asked whether a country that does not recognize China should ever become a member of the Commonwealth peace mission seeking to consult with China and other countries to end the war in South Viet Nam.

"IN A SENSE"

If China takes that position, Pearson said, then it will become an important consideration that will have to be taken into account.

While he, as prime minister, does not expect to be asked to become a member of the mission, he maintained "in a sense" Canada does recognize China, even though it has not granted China diplomatic recognition.

"We sell them a great deal of wheat," he said at a Commonwealth correspondents luncheon. "That is a form of recognition. I'm not always sure they recognize us."

Pearson found himself besieged by questions whether he would be willing to replace Prime Minister Wilson as head of the four-power mission.

"That is a very hypothetical question," he replied. "I think it is a great mistake to talk about a change in the membership of the mission at this stage.... I don't think it is very helpful to talk about changes of the mission membership."

He had not been asked and

'Reds Would Balk At Vote Today'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator J. W. Fulbright said Wednesday he believes the Communists would balk at any new proposal to unite North and South Viet Nam through a supervised election.

Critics have said the United States encouraged the regime of the late Ngo Dinh Diem to ignore this provision for fear that the Communists would win in such a test.

Fulbright said he thinks the United States should disregard such fears if negotiations over Viet Nam ever materialize.

"The Communists always shy away from elections and avoid them if they can."

KREMLIN MAY HELP

By K. C. THALER

LONDON (UPI)—Informed British sources say the Kremlin has offered to urge the North Vietnamese regime to receive the Commonwealth peace mission in Hanoi, if China bars it from Peking.

The disclosure came after Moscow announced it would not receive the four-man mission because it felt the Vietnamese must settle the problem themselves.

NO MENTION

The Soviet refusal was reported by the official news agency Tass. Tass made no mention of the reported Soviet offer to intercede with Hanoi which has been receiving military and other aid from the Russians.

But the sources said a lengthy and "conditional" note received from the Soviet government Wednesday made three points:

● Desire of the Soviet government to dissociate itself from the Vietnamese conflict.

● The dissociation of the Russians from the Chinese in the conflict.

● That if Peking refused to receive the mission, such refusal would put the Soviet government in a position to influence Hanoi to receive the four peace-seekers.

STILL AJAR

In view of the third point, the sources said the Soviet note was not regarded as "completely closing the door."

Commonwealth sources said that for this reason it was felt the mission's task was still "by Continued on Page 2

Red Goal:

'Victory, Not Peace'

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary Dean Rusk warned Wednesday casualties will mount in the "brutal war" in Viet Nam. He said the Communists are pushing for "a military victory," not peace.

"The other side is obviously not ready for peace," Rusk said in recasting unsuccessful peace talk attempts.

Rusk reported that in "a brutal war—marked by terror and sneak attack, and by the killing of women and children in the night"—the Communist Viet Cong guerrillas have killed some 2,300 South Vietnamese civilians.

Since the onset of the Viet Cong monsoon season offensive he said, "setbacks have occurred and serious defeats have been avoided only by the combination of continuing South Vietnamese bravery and effective air and other support."

No Relief In Fire Situation

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—Clouds brought gusting winds, small lightning storms, scattered showers and little relief for more than 120 men fighting two major week-old forest fires Wednesday in the large Prince George fire district.

A Forest Service spokesman said moist Pacific air forecast Tuesday to blanket the province pushed only as far as the Kamloops fire district, 200 miles south of here.

Two Canso water bombers flew missions Wednesday morning to drench embers beyond the perimeter of a 3,500-acre fire burning 20 miles southeast of here.

The spokesman said the 40 men and six bulldozers there have regained firm control of the blaze after 40 m.p.h. winds threatened to spread it beyond the fireguards.

Parliamentary Blessing Assured

Swastikas Blooming For Royal Nuptials

THE HAGUE (UPI)—Vandals painted orange swastikas on walls in The Hague Wednesday and smeared slogans in Amsterdam and Rotterdam saying "Out with Claus" in reference to Claus von Amsberg, the former Nazi officer who plans to marry Queen Princess Beatrix.

But Dutch Premier Joseph M. L. T. Cals said the expected marriage of the princess, 27, and the German commoner, 38, now a West German diplomat, would get the blessing of Parliament.

One high official said the cabinet also has agreed to back Beatrix' choice "because no other way is open to us except public rejection of von Amsberg."

Informed sources said the engagement is expected to be announced by Queen Juliana, Beatrix' mother, on June 28 and the wedding is planned for late in the fall.

They said the queen intends to elevate von Amsberg, to "Prince of the Netherlands" after the marriage. He would be the first commoner in Dutch history to get this title.

Dr. Cals predicted parliamentary consent after two days of consultation with party leaders in both houses. The consultations were held to determine if a bill of approval for the marriage could receive the necessary unanimous or near-unanimous support needed to guarantee the princely retention of her rights to the throne.

It was indicated that few members of parliament, with the exception of some from the Socialist and Communist parties, would oppose the bill.

Some public opposition to the marriage has been reflected in the press and also in the distribution of pamphlets with anti-German slogans. Many Dutch are still bitter over memories of the German occupation.

A number of newspapers have questioned whether it would be proper for a former Wehrmacht soldier and member of the Nazi youth movement to marry the princess.

Fortune from Faulty Phone

Firm Ordered to Pay $1,500,000 to Its Critic

LOS ANGELES (AP)—An attorney who complained about phone service has won a whopping $1,500,000 damage judgment.

All Arthur Garrett wanted back in 1957 was to move his phone from his old office to his new office, six storeys higher in the same building. "From then on," he says, "it was interruptions and more interruptions."

A jury Tuesday awarded him $1 in actual damages and

$1,500,000 in punitive damages from Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co.

The firm says it is studying the case to decide whether to appeal.

Garrett, 63, who served as his own attorney, quipped after the verdict: "Well, you win some, you lose some." Highlights of his testimony: Disputes over what he considered overcharges and service interruptions caused him to run, unsuccessfully, for city attorney in 1961.

Service, after he announced plans to campaign on improve-faulty-phone-service platform, got worse.

At one point, he said, he was told by a woman who identified herself as a company supervisor: "Your telephone is out of order and its going to stay that way. We have our instructions concerning you."

Company witnesses conceded service interruptions, but said financial adjustments were made.

A jury of six men and six women voted 10-2 for the award after seven hours of deliberation.

What are his plans for the award? "I haven't had time to give it a thought," Garrett said. "Since the news got out the phone's been ringing off the hook."
